the political process in the state had brightened considerably after the visit of an all-party delegation to Srinagar Thursday for a first-hand assessment of the situation.

The delegation, led by Deputy Prime Minister Devi Lal and compr-ising leaders of all important parties, Gandhi, was briefed in Srinagar by Governor Jagmohan. The gravity of the situation can be guaged by the fact that the team had to remain confined to its hotel, with the authorities advising them against visiting the city and meeting people.

. The Srinagar visit followed an all-residence Wednesday to evolve a national consensus on what is widely seen as one of the most serious problems facing independent India.

A joint statement issued after the meeting said Pakistan's attempts to internationalise the Kashmir issue from time to time, the rise of fundamentalist and secessionist elements in the valley and their antinational stance had vitiated the situation in the state.

The prime minister reiterated at the meeting that the special status of the state under article 370 of the con-stitution would be preserved and protected in letter and spirit.

Meanwhile, in Srinagar, five police intelligence officers, abducted nt the day detore by Ka miri Muslim separatists, were freed before dawn today, Jagmohan said. The governor said the five men were released unharmed after gover-nment loudspeakers blared all-night warnings that "strong action" would be taken if the kidnapped officers

BEIRUT, March 10, (Agencies): Unofficial American negotiators have had direct contacts with the captors of 18 Westerners believed held in Lebanon and are working on a deal to pay ransom for the hostages' releases, the leading Lebanese magazine Ash Shiraa has said.

Key party meeting begins

BEUING, March 10, (Reuter): The Central Committee of China's ruling Communist Party was believed to be holding a key meeting to help cope with growing international isolation and tighten ideological control, diplomats said today.

They said a shake-up involving several cabinet posts was expected, though no officials above the level of vice-premier or minister were likely to be affected.

"We have seen evidence of lots of official cars moving around and some sort of senior meeting is being held," said a Western

It was unclear if the Central Committee plenum had already begun or whether this was part of a preparatory meeting. But the full plenum was likely to be concluded by Tuesday or Wednesday so that Communist Party chief Jiang Zemin could leave for a scheduled visit to North Korea.

Since China's Central Committee last met in November, Beijing has seen its once staunch supporters in Eastern Europe succumb to demands for democratic change and share power with non-communists. China has been alarmed at the reforms sweeping across Eastern Europe, particularly at a time when relations with the West are badly strained by its bloody crackdown on a pro-democracy movement last June.

Normally, policy affecting foreign relations is left to the Central Committee's Politburo. But the procedural change reflected the depth of Beijing's problems, diplomats said.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev has been blamed in internal party documents for the dramatic changes in Eastern Europe. But publicly, Beijing has insisted that the changes are solely an internal matter for the countries concerned and that it will not interfere.

Diplomats said official publications had refrained from commenting on events in Eastern Europe and this policy was likely to be maintained, especially before Premier Li Peng's planned visit to Moscow in April.

"I don't expect any decision criticising Gorbachev — not with Li Peng planning to visit Moscow," said an Eastern European diplomat.

Chinese officials said this week the plenum would start soon. It would deal with the issue of maintaining links with the nation's one billion people.

Bangkok sinking: experts

BANGKOK, March 10, (Reuter): Bangkok has sunk 160 cm (62 inches) in the past 30 years and will sink further because of haphazard building on the crowd capital's outskirts, Thai experts said.

A study, reported in the Bangkok Post newspaper today, by a team of engineers said the city was sinking because over a million cubic metres of soil water was being extracted daily leading to soil compression.

"For 15 metres (50 feet) down there is nothing but mud," team leader Professor Prinya Nutalaya said. "We must add more water to stop the coil compression further." soil compressing further.

Bangkok's population has tripled in the past 30 years to nearly eight million people. It's water demand has outstripped surface water supplies, the study by the Asian Institute of Technology said.

Hindus attack police: 4 killed

AMRITSAR, India, March 10, (Reuter): At least four people were killed today when police fired on an angry Hindu crowd protesting against Sikh militant violence in the Indian border state of Punjab.

Indonesia plans to execute coup men

Human rights bodies protest

JAKARTA, March 10, (Agencies): Human rights organisations protested today against the government's plans to execute by firing squad six prisoners convicted of taking part in a communist coup attempt 25 years ago.
The chief of the armed forces rejected the criticism as interference in Indonesia's domestic

Lawyer Johannes C. Princen. director of the institute for the defence of human rights, said the six prisoners were taken from their cells in Jakarta's Cipinang prison on March 5. He said their families were notified of the planned executions.

Princen said in an interview there was speculation that the justice minister and attorney general were not available or would not sign the execution

The executions were believed to be planned for Saturday or Sunday, Princen said.

"This is a matter for the attorney general," Justice Minister Ismail Saleh told reporters today at the installation of a new air force chief of staff. At the same ceremony, Foreign Minister Ali Alatas and State Secretary Murdiono, avoided questions by reporters.

Armed forces chief of staff Gen. Try Sutrisno said it was an internal matter involving Indonesia's sovereignty and of no con-cern to outsiders. He said he would announce the executions - if and when they were carried

"Although the verdict was taken a long time ago, implemen-tation of the executions has to wait for the right time," he said.

In addition to Princen's organisation, protests were lodged by the 12-nation European Community, the London-based Amnesty International and the Netherlands government.

If the executions are carried out, said Amnesty International, they would bring to 32 the number of people killed by firing squad since 1985 in Indonesia, compared to four in the previous 10 years. Four former palace guards were executed in mid-February for their part in the abortive coup against the late president Sukarno.

Premier Ruud Lubbers yesterday offered political asylum in the Netherlands for the six prisoners. Lanka's rebel CM will go into 'exile'

TRINCOMALEE, March 10, late 30s, said staying behind in Lanka's strife-torn northeast province under the protection of the Indian army says he will go into exile or fight as a guerrilla after his Indian backers leave this month.

Varatharaja Perumal resigned on March 1, and renamed the provincial council as a Tamil National Assembly, but many saw the moves as the last political acts of a desperate man who had opposed the most powerful Tamil separatist group.

With the last Indians expected to leave the northeast by the end of March and with the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam strengthening their grip on the region, the future looks bleak for Perumal and his group, the Eelam People's Revolutionary

Liberation Front (EPRLF). "I have two options: I can go to the jungle, where I would need militarily training to live as a guerrilla or I can go overseas to continue working for our cause," he said in an interview late yester-

Rice cooked in pipes kills eight Thais

SINGAPORE, March 10, (AP): Eight Thai workers here have died of heart failure this year after eating glutinous rice cooked in pipes made of polyvinyl chloride, it was reported today.

The Straits Times quoted Thai embassy sources as saying that following the deaths, tests were performed on polyvinyl chloride pipes — commonly used at construction sites as substitutes for cooking pots.

The tests performed by the Working Safety Institute in Bangkok showed that when heated to between 100 and 120 degrees Celsius, (212 and 248 Fahrenheit) the pipes gave off deadly hydrogen chloride

Senior forensic pathologist Chao Tzee Cheong told the newspaper that autopsies on the Thais showed they had died of cardiac respiratory failure. He said further tests were necessary to establish a link between the cooking of rice in the pipes and the death of the workers.

The Thai Embassy has handed out leaflets to construction workers to warn Thai workers of the danger.

The newspaper quoted police sources as saying seven workers died in January and another in the first week of February.

reports said police and demon-strators clashed in the village of Duhavi on Thursday when about 30 demonstrators took part in a torchlight procession.
Official reports said five people were wounded when police with batons charged the demon-

NEW DELHI, March 10. (AP): At least 10 people drowned yes terday when a mammoth stone statute of Lord Buddha slid off a barge in a lake at the central Indian city of Hydersbad.
United News of India said.
About 50 people were about the barge at the time of the accident, the news agency said Many of them managed to swim to shore, about 100 metres (300 feet) away, it added.

United News quoted Hyder-bad Police Commissioner Prab-hakar Rao as saying some bodies may have been trapped under the 350-tonnes red granite statue, which sank in 25 metres (80 feet) of water in Hussain Sabar Lake.

The news agency quoted wit-nesses and a survivor as saying the giant statue slid off its trailer and the barge broke up.

Navy divers were dispatched to Hyderabad, 1,200 kilometry (745 miles) southeast of New Delhi, to assist in search and salvage operations.

The barge was being lowed to a rock in the centre of the lake, where the statue was to be erec-

Manuscript on auction

PARIS, March 10, (UPI): A large portion of the late philosopher Jean-Paul Sartre's essay on the classical French novelist Gustave Flanbert will go on the auction block next Monday with an estimated price of between $26,000 and $31,000, officials at the Drouot Auction House said Thursday.

The manuscript, entitled "The Idiot of The Family," represents 95 per cent of the work as it was published in 1972.

The work, described as a psy-choanalytic study of the French writer, will be auctioned along with several other Sartre essays written between 1970 and 1972 on such diverse subjects as racism, prisons, the Palestinian issue and the need to create a new newspaper called "J'Accuse."

The Oolo Plaza in the centre of the Norwegian capital is the city's tallest building, and as the first in the country features a fast lift which travels on the outside of the building.

Since the hotel's opening last week, there has been a rush of visitors wanting to sample the panoramic view from the roof terrace which the botel claims is the highest in Northern Europe.

"There were several thousand last week. Our own guests were mable to get to their rooms, and room service was hampered" said Plaza manager Josef Darius Thursday.

Another problem was that met all the sighteens were marely contains.

Another problem was that not all the sightseers were merely curious.

"Some attempted to throw bottles off the top floor. One even tried to relieve himself into the night club below," said deputy manager Ole Andersen.

Andersen said the hotel was planning to charge non-resident visitors for the ase of the lift.

"A charge of 20 krozer ($3) wouldn't be unreasonable," Daries said adding that those who buy drinks from the rooftop bar may get the lift fee refunded on returning to the ground floor.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska: A pair of pet pigs found themselves back in the pen for promenading down a

"This is an excellent find, the most romantic find of the decade," said Robert Killick, director of the joint London-Bahrain archaeological expedition.

Unlike gold or silver trinkets. ancient pearls are extremely rare because their surfaces peel and they disintegrate, he said. Killick said the pearl, which was four millimetres in diameter, was from the Dilmun era — 45 to 50 centuries ago when the island thrived as a major trading centre between Mesopotamia, now Iraq, and the Indus Valley of West Asia.

Killick said the pearl was believed 4,000 years old because his expedition, which involves Bahrain's Ministry of Information and the British Academy, was digging through an ancient town dating to that time. Bahrain's pearling industry thrived in the past three centuries. but tapered off with the advent of Japan's artificial pearl industry and the vast wealth carned from oil.

Aids virus and say the experimental technique could combat other types of viruses. Dr John J. Rossi, a researcher at the Bechman Research Institute of the City of Hope in Duarte, California, said that his laboratory has made a sympathetic ribozyme that is able to genetically cripple the Aids virus and prevent it from reproducing in test tabe experiments.

The ribozyme, said Rossie, "is inside the cell and its waiting there like a soldier waiting for the enemy to come.'

Although the technique is promising, he said it is still far from being available for treating Rossi, in a telephone interview, said his team developed an artificial gene that secreted the ribozyme and then put the gene into living human cells in test tubes. When these human cells were exposed to the Aids virus, the ribozyme blocked the virus from reproducing. The ribozyme works like

"molecular scissors," that slice the ribonucleic acid of the Aids virus, thus blocking the virus from making copies of itself.
Ribonneleic acid, or RNA, is used by the virus to force cells to make more virus. By cutting the RNA, said Rossi, the virus is permanently crippled. The ribozyme itself is a copy of an RNA that other scientists found in a plant virus. Those researchers discovered that a small part of the plant virus RNA acted like an enzyme and was capable of selectively cutting any part of the genetic pattern in a

The term ribozyme refers to an RNA that acts as an enzyme by permitting a reaction to occur within a cell. Rossi said his team copied the olecular structure of the plant RNA and then developed a synthetic gene that manufactured this ribozyme inside the human cells in a laboratory. A major advantage of the ribozyme, he said, is that after it attacks and cuts the RNA in one virus, the molecule releases itself and can then attack other virus particles.

"It can do it again and again and again," said Rossi. "It is like one soldier-cutting down 10 or more of the enemy. The ribozyme can be designed to attack any part of the viral RNA and leave other portions alone. Rossi said he believes the ribozyme could also be used to combat virtually any kind of virus, including those that cause colds

"It could be used to treat any virus at all because they all use RNA," he said. "By destroying the RNA, you can inactivate the viral function."

the outlying non-Russian republic has begun to take shape ahead of Monday's opening of the Congress of People's Deputies.

Both groups are united by fears that the revamped presidency could quash moves toward real democracy and expanded regional autonomy and even independence.

In Moscow the radical interregional group of deputies to the Parliament held a plenary session today to map out their challenge ahead of the congress.

Delegates to the congress from the Ukraine and Georgia have voiced alarm over the presidential law's lack of protection for the constituent republics.

And the newly-elected Lithuanian Parliament, firmly controlled by the Sajudis mass movement, is racing to re-establish the republic's pre-war independence at the weekend, before the presidential law is formally enacted.

Among provisions of the bill, approved on Feb 27 by the inner Parliament and certain to be ratified by the congress ahead of Gorbachev's selection, is the president's right to rule by

Galina Starovoitova, an inter-regional member, told Moscow television the group would probably nominate its own candidate to run against Gorbachev, despite slim odds of success.

She said the group's can-didate, if successful, would immediately step down and throw the post open to nationwide, direct elections. Critics have charged the election by deputies rather than by the people violates Gorbachev's own calls for greater "democratisation" of Soviet life.

Europe's power blocs. France meanwhile gave full backing to Polish demands for a binding border treaty with the two Germanys and said Warsaw should join talks on security aspects of unification along with the four victorious World War Two allies.

President Francois Mitterrand said a resolution passed by the Bonn Parliament on Thursday did not go far enough.

The Infas poll suggested 39 per cent of East Germans favoured a demilitarised Germany and 26 per cent a neutral state.

Only four per cent said they wanted a unified state to be a member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation, and nine per cent said Germany should be in both the Western alliance and the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact. The poll showed the Social Democrats (SPD) as the most popular party in the run-up to the elections with the support of 30 per cent of decided voters. Twenty-one per cent preferred the conservative alliance backed by Kohl's Christian Democrats and 15 per cent supported the reformed Communist Party, now called the Party for Democratic Socialism.

Kohl, meanwhile, has intensified a new internatonal campaign to reassure his nation's allies and neighbours he is not gambling with their interests or bungling the German unification process.

Kohl's government yesterday vowed that "all steps on the path to unity will be done in close coordination with our partners in the alliance, in the European Community, and with our neighbours in Eastern Europe."

Less than 24 hours earlier, Kohl reassured his Nato partners in Brussels that the Germans would not try to go solo during the unification process.

Meanwhile, Kohl's Christian Democrats issued new appeals for East Germans not to leave their homeland. More than 100,000 East Germans have gone to West Germany this year, placing tremendous burdens on social services and the housing and job markets.

Wolfgang Mischnick, a leading lawmaker with the Free Democratic Party, junior part-ner in Kohl's coalition government, said emergency shelters for the East German resettlers may be shut down after East Germany's March 18 elections to discourage more from heading

Polltaxriotsrage

Question mark on Iron Lady's survival

LONDON, March 10, (Reuter): Protests against a new tax cham-pioned by Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher have crupted into succes-sive nights of rioting on London's streets and intensified the pressure against Britain's beleaguered leader.

Riot police battled stone-throwing protesters in London on Thursday and Friday nights at the climax of a week when thousands of Britons up and down the country took to the streets in angry demonstrated to the streets of th

Some political commentators question whether Thatcher, who has

The authoritative Economist magazine said suggestions that Thatcher may be out of power by the autumn "must now be taken seriously.

The controversial tax, to be introduced in England and Wales on April 1, will replace local property taxes with a per-sonal charge on all adults. Many households—already feeling the pinch from high interest rates on home loans — face sharply higher bills. About 20 million people, including tenants and young adults living at home, will be paying towards local services for the first time

Critics say the new system favours the rich, penalises the poor and takes no account of people's ability to pay. The government says it will make local authorities more accountable to their voters, and blames free-spending Labour-led councils for the high tax charges in

Conservative politicians and the largely pro-government press have blamed the rioting in London on militant extremists on the fringes of the Labour movement. Labour leader Neil Kinnock

After a trial that lasted more than two months, Prego mexpectedly dropped her lawsuit and agreed to the out-of-court settlement on Thursday, as the jury was scheduled to hear closing arguments. She said she would use the money to help her family and to provide for her medical expenses in "the tough days ahead." Brooklyn state justice Aaron D. Bernstein originally ordered the participants in the lawsuit not to disclose the amount of the settlement. Yesterday, however, he reversed his order after a newspaper, the New York Post, sued to have the settlement unsealed.

The judge said he had issued the gag order to spare Prego the embarrassment of being questioned by reporters about why she settled for such a seemingly small sum. Floating eye hospital to leave Middle East in April

THE Soviet floating eye hospital, Floks, is to leave the Middle East next month.

Floks management say no more operations will be performed on board the ship, which is currently berthed in Jebel Ali near Dubai, after April 5, though diagnoses will continue up until April 13.
"Some Soviet trained doctors will remain in the UAE to carry out post-operative checks on those patients who undergo operations in the final weeks of our stay here," said a Folks spokeswoman.

Doctor Minas Atamian has been appointed onboard medical liaison officer to help patients who may have problems or queries. Floks arrived in Dubai last October for a six-month stay, Jebel Ali was chosen as its first major operational port of call outside of the Eastern bloc because of an unprecedented demand from Middle East patients for Soviet eye surgery.

By the end of last month a total of 9.607 people had visited the ship in Jebel Ali to undergo diagnoses - more than one quarter later underwent surgery. Almost a third of the patients came from the UAE but the figure also includes 1,352 from Oman: 1,133 from Saudi Arabia: 741 from Kuwait; 541 from Bahrain; 478 from Qatar; 413 from Jordan and 283

The Petr Pervyy, a former car carrier, was convered into a hospital ship last year at a cost of $12.75 million. The brainchild of famed Soviet eye surgeon, Professor Svyatoslav Fyodorov, the vessel houses a seven-stage computerised diagnostics centre and multi-station operating theatre.

Teams of Fyodorov-trained surgeons on board carry out the latest eye micro-surgery techniques including keratocoagulation, vaser-reconstruction and negative lens implantation.

On April 14, the Petr Prevyy will be dry docked in The Floks floating eye hospital — just one more month in the Dubai. It will later sail to a Mediterranean port.

230 to attend Transplant conference opens today

By Nashaat Al Agha

THE Second International Congress of the Middle East Society or Organ Transplant -MESOT — will be opened today at 8.15 am at Kuwait Regency Palace Hotel under the patronage of the Crown Prince and Prime Minister Sheikh Saad Al Abdulla Al Sabah.

The secretary-general of the Kuwait Institute for Medical Specialisations Dr Abdulla Al Rifai and director of Hamed Al Essa Organ Transplant Centre Dr George Abuna held a press conference on the occasion. Rifai. said that the congress will be organised by MESOT in cooperation with Kuwait Foundation for Advancement of Science (KFAS), Kuwait University (Faculty of Medicine) and Kuwait Institute for Medical Specialisations (KIMS). About 230 scientists, specialists and surgeons will attend the congress and will discuss the latest medical and scientific methods of transplanting different organs. He added that Kuwait has been acclaimed for its proficiency in the field of transplanting kidneys and pancreas. It is time to start a major national campaign to encourage people to contribute their organs. Kuwait has issued a transplant law supported by the Islamic Sharia. He added that famous Muslim scholars supported organ transplants and called on relatives of dead people to agree to permit the donation of organs of their deceased

Dr George Abuna who is also the head of the organisational committee of the congress and ine chairman of MESOT (based in Ankara') said that the congress will be held from 11/3 to 15/3/90. The organisational committee has selected 204 papers to be reviewed and discussed during the meetings out of 260 research papers received by the committee from different medical centres in the world including the Middle

He added that 30 researches will also present their papers during the congress.

Abuna pointed out that there will be 14 sessions on the transplant of organs like kidney, heart, lung, liver, pancreas cells and bone marrow. There might be an exhibit of the latest medical equipment and medicines that are used in transplant surgeries.

The visitors and guests will enjoy a daily programme to visit the touristic places and landmarks of Kuwait besides social activities.

He added that a grand Arabic public seminar will be held on Wednesday March 14 between 6 and 8 pm on the problems and solutions of donating organs in Kuwait and the Middle East.

Donations Kuwait's Minister of Planning and Acting Minister of Public Health and the Chairman of Kuwait's Organs Transplant Society, Dr Abdulrahman Al Awadi was quoted as saying that about 750 citizens and residents have joined the society to date.

In an interview with a local daily, Awadi said that these members had registered their approval to donate their organs after death. He disclosed that out of eight dead members last year, the families of four had agreed to donate their organs. However, he said that this level could be considered encouraging, viewed in the light of customs and tradi-

Burgan Bank to heighten overseas activities: Ahmad

THE Burgan Bank has envisaged plans to develop its existing functions and introduce new activities during the decade of the 1990s at both the local and international levels.

The bank will increase its involvement in the banking activity by increasing its securities portfolio and procure new financial resources by having new investment projects, Sheikh Ahmad Abdulla Al Ahmad, the chairman and managing director of the bank said.

Healthy

The official said that the bank vill also increase its branches by expanding its presence in various housing areas. Additionally, the bank will strive to have different activities in international markets and benefit from the changes in East Europe and the European Community that will come on the scene by the end of 1992. The bank will open branches in these markets and will also be actively involved in a number of other countries that achieved success in industrial and financial projects like in the Far East, he healthy pace and is stable after having suffered from local and foreign negative factors during the last period. The national economy of Kuwait is affected by the economies of other countries, the official said. However, he added that economic liberality of East Europe, the economic unity of Europe by the end of 1992 and the appearance of new industrial communities in the world with abilities of Kuwait to export surplus of capital investments abroad will all be positive factors

on the performance of the national economy. He commented that the stability of oil prices and predictions of an increase in the future coupled with the stability of the local scene after the end of the Iraq-Iran war will positively help the national economy rebound. He praised the report of the joint economic committee and said that it will activate the national economy. The most important issue mentioned in the report is the settling of debts taken from banks by citizens that amount to less than KD250,000. The recommendations in this respect will help debtors to resume their cial institutions.

Ahmad pointed out that the law of investment funds that will be issued in the near future will activate the national economy. He added that the level of savings in Kuwait is very large due to the high incomes. But, he commented that the savings of non-Kuwaitis which till now have not been invested in the stock market will be invested after the inssuance of the new law in the shape of investment funds. The non-Kuwaitis will be allowed to possess real estates, but only through these funds. This is intended to develop the economic activities and increase prices of real estates and the stock market.

The banking official said that national banks, including Burgan Bank believe in the necessity to replace non-Kuwaiti manpower with Kuwaitis without adversely affecting banking services. This scheme will provide the vehicle to attract new graduates to the banking sector. These new graduates could then be provided intensive training courses in the multifacet try to qualify them to take up senior positions, Ahmad said.

But children's books are considered a luxury and are sold at specialist outlets. In recent years, they have been made available at supermarkets in the hope of pushing up sales. "Books remain a minority culture, and as there is not as much money in it as toys, and there is a lack of publicity. But there is a growing demand for exploiting the market," said Julia. There is also a need to encourage children to take up reading. This not only helps them to learn the skills but also instills an interest in reading for pleasure, she added.

Egypt vows to crush threats against unity

Crackdown on fundamentalists

CAIRO, March 10, (UPI): Egypt's Islamic affairs minister said authorities would crack down on anyone threatening national unity, after clashes between Muslim Fundamentalists and security forces this week left at least one person dead, a Cairo newspaper reported yesterday.

'The state will strike with an iron fist anyone trying to undermine national unity," the daily Al Akhbar quoted Islamic Affairs Minister Mohammed Ali Mahgoub as telling a government-organ-ised rally on Thursday at Abu Qurqas, 125 miles (200-km) south of Cairo.

'This applies to Muslims and non-Muslims

The rally followed clashes between Islamic fundamentalists and security police when extremists set fire to Coptic churches and shops, killing at least one person and injuring a police officer.

The violence apparently erupted after distribution of a pamphlet decrying affairs between Coptic Christian men and Muslim women, Al Akhbar said. Fundamentalists were also reported to have burned down a candy factory after hearing rumours

Aoun ready to take 'vacation'

Talks offer to Hirawi

BEIRUT, March 10, (UPI): Maverick Christian leader Gen. Michel Aoun expressed readiness to enter into direct dialogue with Syrian-backed President Elias Hirawi and step aside if an accord on resolving the 15-yearold civil war is reached, the An Nahar newspaper reported

The leading newspaper quoted Aoun as saying that he was ready to leave the presidential palace in Beirut's suburbs of Baabda and take "a vacation."

"Baabda (palace) is not an objective in itself. What is more important is to reach a solution acceptable to all Lebanese." Aoun said, "then I can take a vacation. It was the first time the 54-year-old general showed readiness to step aside since former President Amin Gemayel appointed him to head a military cabinet on Sept 22, 1988. Aoun said he was prepared to enter into direct, unconditional dialogue with President Hirawi regarding a peace accord hammered out in Taif, Saudi Arabia,

Oct 21. The application or abrogation of the Taif accord should not be made a condition for the proposed dialogue, Aoun said. The Lebanese Parliament approved the agreement, which was backed by the Arab League, but Aoun rejected the pact because it failed to ensure a speedy withdrawal of Sysian troops from Lebanon.

He has also refused to recognise the authority of President Hirawi, who was elected by the parliament under the terms of the Taif accord, and declared himself the head of the only legitimate government in the country.

In an interview with United Press International on Thursday, Aoun said a solution that would ease his concerns "could mean adding only a comma" to the Taif pact.

Libya invites US for talks on chem issue

ROME. March 10. (Kuna): An official of the Libyan Embassy here yesterday renewed his country's vigorous c' hial of Western reports that Libya was producing chemical weapons and invited the US to an open dialogue on the issue.

The Libyan official, who wished to be unnamed, also expressed his country's astonishment at the US reaction to those reports which originated in Western Europe and echoed by the American media. The Libyan official, while repeating Tripoli's denials of the allega-tion, said "we invite the American administration to an open, frank and sensible dialogue on the issue without (the US) jumping to an attitude based on wrong and false reports." The US embassy spokesman said his country's aim is to dismantle the Libyan Rabta chemical plant, claiming this was the only way, and not mere inspection, to ensure that no chemical weapons were being

Libya's congress ends in stalemate: Khaddafi elevated to supreme leader

TRIPOLI, March 10, (Agencies): Libya's people's parliament has closed after an acrimonious row between the executive and deputies over financing the welfare state, with neither side the clear winner. However, the decision by the general

Japanese harmony

Fine examples of Japanese art ranging from prehistoric times to the 19th century are being shown at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York

By Theodore F. Wolff

NEW YORK: Few places exude so profound a sense of peace and serenity as the Japanese rooms in the metropolitan Museum of Art's Sackler Galleries for Asian Art. No outside sounds penetrate to this deeply interior area. The rooms are hushed and still, and the art, hung sparsely and judiciously in the Japanese manner, is subtle, muted and conductve to contemplation.

Every item on view is choice, whether it be a fragile piece of porcelain, an ancient, weather-beaten sculpture, or a folding screen depicting dramatic landscape vistas. Time seems to stand still. One becomes ware that the spaces between objects are almost as important as the things

A highlight at present is a special exhibition of 130 very fine examples of Japanese art from the collection of Peggy and Roger Gerry. It includes a wide variety of items ranging in time from prehistoric days of the 19 century. All were acquired by Gerry over the past four decades and have been promised to the metropolitan.

Dominating the collection, at least in size, are a pair of six-section screens from the studio of Kano Motonobu (1479-1559) depicting "Four Gentlemanly Accomplishments." One of the finest examples of its kind, this work celebrates the cultivated enjoyment of music, games of strategy, calligraphy, and painting. These accomplishments, rooted in Taoist ideals of retirement and harmony with nature, and tempered by the Confucian tradition of wordly responsibility, are represented within a sweeping landscape symbolizing the eternal cycle of the

Cherished in private Japanese collections until 1927, these screens were painted to function not only as decorative items but as edifying that placed their owners within a long and lofty tradition of learning

Ceramic

On a humbler level is a group of outstanding ceramic utensils made for everyday use by Japanese craftsmen living as far back as 2500 B.C. and as recently as the 19th century. The finest have the aura and presence of major sculpture, although they were fashioned to serve as ordinary storage jars, flasks, or vases. Most are deceptively simple, with a minimum of decoration, and exceedingly subtle glazes. One of the most distinctive, a Sue ware, early Nara period (646-710) gray pottery flask, was acquired by the Gerrys in fragments. One can only imagine their surprise when the pieces were assembled to make an almost intact

The major portion of the show consists of over 90 examples of export porcelain of the sort sent abroad by the Japanese in the 17th and 18th centuries. Among the more attractive later pieces is a tankered fashioned in the shape of a pear and decorated with floral designs (late 17th century); a ewer (c. 1680) with a strap handle decorated with birds and peonies; and a teapot in the shape of a melon (late 17th century).

And last but far from least are the outstanding individual items scattered throughout the show. One of the most charming is a small (12and a half-inches high), 10th century cypress "Flying Angel," while one of the most exotic is a gold and silver illiustrated frontispiece of a religious text, one of nearly 5,000 scrols dedicated in 1176 to a clan

One of the more pressing questions—are there other planetary systems and, if so, are they inhabited? may have to wait for an even more powerful telescope. The hubble, the most expensive unmanned spacecraft ever built, originally was scheduled for launch in late 1983, but technical problems postponed liftoff. The Challenger explosion on Jan 28, 1986 delayed the mission until 1989, and concern over the Shuttle's solid rocket boosters pushed it back yet again.

Leaning Tower of Pisa

Master plan for restoration put on hold

By Karen Wolman

ROME, (CSM): Questions have often been raised about whether the Leaning Tower of Pisa was born bent.

In fact, the legendary list that has made the tower a marvel for mediaeval scholars and an enigma for engineers the world over first started when the ground beneath it shifted only a few years after construction began in the 12th century.

Now, the campanile is swirling in a controversy over just how much longer it can continue its gravity-defying stand. The debate was touched off by a recent report by the Italian Ministry of Public Works warning that the 14,000-ton marble monument was in imminent danger of toppling and suggesting it should be closed for repairs.

As a result, Pisa's mayor, Giacomo Granchi, decided to make one of Italy's top tourist attractions off-limits for the first time. Belis tolled out a dirge in mourning on Jan 7 when the tower was closed.

"Closure of the tower is mortifying for us and all Pisans," said Antonio Lazzarini of the Monument Preservation Committee, which oversees its maintenance.

"It's definitely a defeat." In principle, Mayor Granchi was against closing the tower. He only grudgingly signed a tem-porary closure order after weeks of wrangling with Public Works Minister Giovanni Prandini failed to give the tower a more permanent reprieve. And to prevent bureaucratic delays from keeping the tower closed indefinitely, Granchi has vowed to reopen it unless restoration work begins in three months.

"We're waiting to see how the government will respond to the mayor's challenge," says Laz-

The mayor, who is backed by a bevy of local experts, argues that the commission sounded a false alarm and contends the tower is not at any greater risk now of collapsing than in the past.

Piero Pierotti, an expert on mediaeval architecture at the University of Pisa, acknowledges that the ground beneath the tower is unstable because of a fluctuating water table and that the marbles of its graceful loggia are heavily damaged. In a telephone interview he insists. "I'm convinced the tower is not in any more immediate danger of falling than it was before.

Indeed, most experts believe the tower - which now leans some 13 feet off-centre at its top -- could resist gravity at least another century. If anything, they say, the latest measurements are proof that the tower's tilt is not getting worse. In June, the tower had only moved 0.2 millimetres (1/125th of an inch) the previous 12 months, well under the 1.1 millimetre average since monitoring began early this

Tourists

One concern for Mayor Granchi's Pisan constituency is that the tower's closure will dry up tourist revenues. Pisa can count on some 800,000 visitors to the tower each year. This adds up to prognosis: Without urgent treatment, the tower could topple

"without warning." Prandini's cure — the proposal of a team of five engineers - centres on construction of a giant scaffolding that would shroud half the tower. This metal

girdle would provide a platform

Dynamic stability proposed

By David Christian Smith

BOSTON, (CSM): Although his plan was conceived 18 years ago, Yao Tzu Li says it could save Pisa's leaning tower. "It is a well-thought-out proposal, and I stil believe it is applicable," says Li.

Then a professor of aeronautics and astronautics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass., in 1972 Li submitted his design to an international competition sponsored by the Commission for the Restoration of the Tower of

The contest prompted entries from three continents, most of which were deemed amateurish and eccentric. Only 14 were judged by a special panel. Five were "worth particular consideration," according to an official statement. Li's entry was one of them. But all proposals were rejected.

Asked why the contest produced no winner, Li says, "It was a totally political issue." He made a trip to Italy after the contest to question the outcome. "The government didn't have the solid means" to implement any plan, he says.

Although uncertain what pushed authorities to close the tower now, Li says, "Sooner or later there is a point of no return," and adds, "it gets harder and harder the longer you don't do anv-

The basic assumption behind Li's proposal was that the tower is veering from its centre of gravity because the ground is unstable. He likened the problem to that of stabilizing an aircraft. The wings support the weight, and the elevator and stabilizer in the tail continually balance the plane. His team proposed adding a set of relatively small pads extending from the nain tower base to provide "dynamic stabilization."

Told that controlling the water pressure below the tower had slowed its leaning, Li comments: "Slowing only prolongs the problem. It doesn't solve anything."

some $2 million in tickets alone, a respectable contribution to the maintenance of Pisa's mon-

But Giulio Carlo Argan, a noted art historian, complained in a newspaper article, "It's indecent that monuments have to earn a living to survive.' Argan says the weight alone of the throngs is a serious hazard and is relieved the tower will be getting a rest.

Attention was fixed on the precarious state of Pisa tower after a mediaeval tower in the northern town of Pavia collapsed last March killing four people.

Pisa's plight is not unusual in a country whose trove of archaeological and artistic treasures is in constant need of repairs. Only this summer in Verona, the balcony that tradition says is the one from which Juliet entreated Romeo started crumbling.

In its checkup report, the 166-member special commission reporting to Prandini diagnosed the Leaning Tower of Pisa's ailments and came up with the for workers during restoration of the delicate marble of the loggias. The most significant aspect of Prandini's plan is that it aims to finally solve the problem of the tower's unstable base. The metal scaffolding would secure the structure while its foundations are anchored by giant spokes to a $ar{\mathbf{V}}$ irtually ever since the tower's first stone was laid in 1173, based on designs by Bonnano Pisano, the ground has shifted beneath it. When only three tiers were finished, the tilting began and construction was eventually halted.

The tower's base has always been subject to sinking since it is layered underneath with clay and sand, and waterways cross the spot at a depth of some 30 metres (98 feet), says Pierotti.

The campanile was only completed in 1303 after Giovanni di Simone devised an ingenious solution based on the complex balancing of weights that ena-bled him to build a light, graceful structure atop an already faulty foundation.

Should Prandini's plan be executed, Pierotti fears it will destroy Di Simone's architectural aichemy. "The project was drafted by engineers who know nothing about mediaeval architecture," he laments. He is convinced the cure the engineers have proposed — and that was accepted by the ministry last year is far worse than the problem. He remembers that three years ago the commission was suggesting the belfry be removed to lighen the tower. The weight of the 14th-century belfry, according to Pierotti, acts as a counterbalance

The danger of a botched restoration looms large in Pisa. After one ill-advised attempt to consolidate the ground in 1936. the tower slipped by as much as three inches.

Furthermore, Pierotti attacks the engineers' assumption that the tower's dry stone masonry can be solidified by injecting the interstices with cement. "These hollow spots serve to both lighten the tower and make it flexi-ble," says Pierotti, insisting that the loose filling in the walls was part of Di Simone's plan and that a good restoration must respect the use of original materials. The use of cement is therefore anathema to Pierotti. The University of Pisa art historian is also petrified the tower's marbles would crumble in the metal grip of the girdle and that the planned excavation around the base could actually precipitate rather than prevent the tower's fall.

Master plan

For now, it appears the ministry's master plan for the tower has been put on hold, much to Pierotti's relief. Rather than implement the ministry's blueprint, Pierotti would prefer putting it back together again. That way, he says, the tower's secrets would finally be revealed.

Meanwhile, he hopes restorers will immediately begin repairing or replacing the marble columns that he says have been neglected for some 30 years.

The Prandini plan capped a long series of attempts to solve the Leaning Tower of Pisa's predicament. An international competition held in 1972 yielded some 22 plans, none of which was ever accepted.

Through the years the search has yielded some strange solutions for salvaging the tower. The preservation society charged with the tower's upkeep is regularly swamped with mail prescribing remedies from around the world.

A group of American school-children suggested the campanile's rim be hooked to a hovering helicopter. Perhaps the zaniest idea was that of a well-meaning Florentine who proposed to erect a huge statue of Saint Ran-ieri, Pisa's patron saint, that would hold up the tower with the tip of his sword.

HE world's first successful heart operation on a baby still in it's mother's womb has been carried out at Guy's Hospital in London.

The surgery, which involved opening a valve in the baby's heart with a "balloon catheter" measuring just three millimetres in diameter, was carried out twice during the mother's pregnancy - at 31 weeks and 33 weeks. A third operation within hours of its birth ensured that the valve had been fully opened.

Most babies with this defect die in the womb and few who are born survive for more than 24 hours. Last year, the Guy's Hospital team performed the same operation but the baby died in the womb a day later. In this case. the baby boy was born prematurely on 4 January and survived for five weeks before kidney failure led to his death. Doctors say that despite the

The needle enters the heart through the left ventricle and a high resolution ultrasound scan is used to guide the needle into the tiny heart.

A narrow flexible tube is then passed down the needle taking with it the deflated balloon and a piece of platinum guide wire. The

The team that pioneered the technique consisted of Dr. Lindsay Allan, director of Guy's perinatal cardiology unit, Dr Darryl Maxwell, director of the hospital's foetal medicine unit. and Michael Tynan, professor of paediatric cardiology. Dr Alin commented: "It is new, uncharted territory, but we are for the first time recognising that some babies who once had no hope can be treated before birth. It is hoped that such operations in the womb will replace heart transplant in the newly born. Foetal surgery also has the advantage that the healing seems to be quicker. In addition, the baby is protected from bacteria in the womb and its nutrition through the placenta is not interrupted.

Chaos rules in Karachi

KARACHI, Pakistan, (AP): Guns, drugs, bloody ethnic clashes and fractious politics have infected the country's biggest city, and some say they threaten democracy in Pakistan. Political parties fight pitched battles through Karachi's cramped alleyways. The latest clash on Feb 7 left 60 dead and hundreds wounded. Paramilitary forces still patrol the city and a curfew remains in place in some parts.

Gangs of student extremists have turned the closed universities into armed camps. Kidnappings and torture are commonplace.

Unemployment is rampant. Government officials say they have no

A gramme (0.035 ounce) of heroin costs less than $2. Eleven years ago the drug was hardly found in Pakistan. Now an estimated 300,000 addicts crowd Karachi's a slums, one-third of the nation's total. A Kalashnikov automatic weapon, another recent arrival, rents for $5 a day. Bands of robbers roam the countryside, and car thieves operate throughout the city. The police, many people say, are either corrupt or incompetent.

Police say they are outguined and outmanned. Karachi has one of the lowest ratios of police to citizens of any city in South Asia: 458 to 1. Beirut "Karachi, once a city of peace, tranquility and affluence, has turned almost into Beirut." wrote Mahmood Ali Malik, a noted psychologist,

With a population of more than 8 million, Karachi is Pakistan's biggest city, its economic centre and its only major port, sprawling on the sun-baked coast of the Arabian Sea.

Any problem that Pakistan has, Karachi appears to have in greater measure, and because of its size and importance, Karachi's problems are national in scope.

Three layers of interwoven troubles weigh on the city and the rest of Sind province, which surrounds Karachi—ethnic strife, social breakdown and a newer phenomenon called "the heroin and Kalashnikov

Guns have been plentiful in Pakistan ever since Soviet troops intervened in Afghanistan in December 1978 and the US-supported

Afghan rebels moved their operations to Pakistan.

Millions of dollars in US aid to the rebels helped fund a huge arms industry in northern Pakistan. Simultaneously, the manufacture of heroin became an important source of income for Afghan refugees and the tribes in the area.

Weapons accompanied the narcotics south to Karachi, a main conduit for heroin to Western Europe and the United States. Seizures of 2,731 kilos (about 6,000 pounds) of heroin between July and 1986, and 10 times the amounts confiscated in earlier years.

Shootings

Shootings of law enforcement officers are common. A top customs agents was shot six times in the face and leg as he left his home in June last year on a supposedly secret raid. He survived. Drugs and guns in the city combine with increasing crime in the surrounding countryside. Disputes that were solved by village headman are now solved with guns, says historian Hamida Khoura.

"We face an institutional breakdown throughtout the province," said Sind's Governor, Fakhruddin Ibrahim. "Chaos is ruling."

The police, he said, can do little to stop it. The police in Pakistan have always been a political tool. Years of martial law taught them that," he said in a recent interview. "I don't see

Pathans and Punjabis journeyed south to make a fast rupee in the port city. Sindhis came from the countryside to sell their produce. And immigrants, called Mohajirs, flooded from largely Hindu India to Muslim Pakistan

The elements did not merge in the melting pot, and clashes between rival ethnic groups started in the 1950s.

Ethnic strife took on political overtones in 1985 with the formation of the Mohajir Qaumi Movement, which sought to represent the interests of immigrants from India. The Mohajirs say they are discriminated against by the provincial government, dominated by Sindhis. They want more jobs and official recognition of their ethnic group. The Mohajir Qaumi Movement, led by Altaf Hussain, has grown into an important political force, culling support from Mohajir communities that dominate Karachi and other cities in Sind. Karachi's local political problems took on a national scope when

Prosperity eludes Gorby

Freedom and reform abound

MOSCOW, (AP): Mikhail S. Gorbachev promised the people a better deal and has brought them far greater freedom during five years in power, but the shortages and discomforts that make daily life a struggle have grown worse.

"The main thing is to make life better for people," he told a Western interviewer a few months after becoming Communist Party chief in March 1985. There is no goal-more important to us."

Five years later, the Soviet Union and its former Eastern European satellies enjoy a stunning degree of democracy.

Gorbachev has eased the fear of war. He has freed olitical prisoners from jails and psychiatric hospitals. Little remains of communism in the Communist Party's new platform, and the party no longer enjoys unquestioned authority.

n the matters of personal comfort most impor tant to the average citizen, however, Gorbachev has not delivered.

Food, housing and consumer goods are in even shorter supply than when he took command of the Kremlin. Nearly half the people questioned in a poll published this month said daily existence was harder than in 1985.

"Five years later, the drudgery of renewal continues, and isn't yet close to its objectives," commented the pro-reform Moscow News recently.

Gorbachev's economic programme has been a series of mistakes and half-measures. He has delayed painful but critically needed steps such as reforming a price structure that has no relation to costs and wastes resources.

Farmers

Only in the last several weeks have legislators approved new laws allowing farmer to lease land, and letting individuals own means of productions such as factories. But even ardent supporters of the laws say they do not go far enough.

Meat, butter and other foods are rationed in many places. In Moscow, a city of 9 million people, 1.25 million are on waiting lists for better apart-

Jewels of imperial architecture are crumbling. Repairmen and snowplows seem to have vanished. Gorbachev knows it. In a speech to the Communist Party Central Committee a month ago, the Soviet leader acknowledged "further disruptions of the consumer market, a growth in shortages and queues, and a fall in the purchasing power of the

"We hoped to mount the peak of the crisis in 1989. but recent events have shown that there has been no change for the better," he said.

On March 11, 1985, when Gorbachev followed the old, ailing leadership that had presided for two decades, there was much that needed fixing. His predecessors left a nation near bankruptcy, its infrastructure worn out and people dispirited. It had plenty of missiles, but no hot water in two-thirds of the rural hospitals. In the repressive Soviet Union of 1985, however, few dared openly say anything was wrong.

Gorbachev changed that. Under the banner of glasnost, or openness, he has introduced greater official honesty and an improved intellectual life.

Last year, he installed the beginnings of democracy with the first competitive elections and first working Partiament in 70 years. In February, he won agreement from the Communist Party leadership for a multiparty system.

Newspapers and television, which once provided endless paeans to the sacrifices of World War II soldiers and hero labourers, have been transformed. The Iron Curtain has disintegrated. Once-forbidden books have been published, including Alexander Solzhenitsyn's "The Gulag Archipelago."

In 1990, it is expected that 8 million Soviet citizens will visit the outside world, where Gorbachev has had his greatest success and may be more popular than at home.

Reformers across Eastern Europe attributed their courage to act, and their success, to the Soviet leader's promise of non-interference and his indications that the time for change had arrived. By setting the satellites free and agreeing with the United States to eliminate medium-range missiles.

he helped lessen the danger of war. Nato has reduced border patrols, recognising the diminishing risk of an attack by the Warsaw Pact. On the horizon are treaties on reducing longrange nuclear weapons by 50 per cent and withdrawing hundreds of thousands of US and Soviet soldiers from Central Europe.

Even Soviet leaders more conservative than Gorbachev regard such achievements with pride. "We have lifted the real threat of nuclear war," said Yegor K. Ligachev, the leading conservative in the Politburo, when asked by reporters March 4 to name the successes of Gorbachev's five years. 'We were on the brink," he said. "One step more. and we could have found ourselves in a nuclear catastrophe."

Regional and ethnic tensions are another matter. Ethnic conflicts have taken 500 lives in two years and nationalism arising from the new political freedom threatens to dismember the Soviet Union. Lithuanians talk of declaring independence this

Activists Kazimieras Uoka told the Lithuanian Review the Soviet Union was so sick that, "by summer, the situation in Russia will be such that our secession will be hardly noticeable."

Gorbachev responded to the threat of anarchy by seeking strong new presidential powers, including the right to declare war and suspend legislatures in the 15 republics.

After local and regional elections on March 4, he chev's job lies ahead.

told reporters the new powers were necessary because "stability and order" were breaking down. He said disintegration of the Soviet Union would be a greater upheaval than China's Cultural Revolution of a generation ago.

Radical

But progressive parliamentarian Yuri Afanasiev. who is forming a more radical opposition to Gorba-chev, said the Soviet leader's problem is not a shortage of power, but of trust.

"Nobody listens." Afanasiev said in a television interview. He said Gorbachev talks about the basic problem, of the need to transform a highly centralised empire into a voluntary union of independent nations. But he has yet to act on the promise.

Misgivings are increased by the fact that Gorbachev has promised legal guarantees of human rights, limits on Communist Party power and fully competitive democracy for nearly two years, but has not translated the pledges into law.

Many citizens were shocked by his nationally televised, finger-wagging tirade against progressives who denounced the proposal as dangerously close to dictatorship.

Whatever his powers, the hardest part of Gorba-

ISP students' plight

SIR: I would like to draw promet attention of the management of International School of Pakistan towards a serious and sensitive issue

I. It is very stuming as well as shocking that the regular students of the Pakistan International School. regular students of the raxistant that haddran school have appeared as external students, in the secondary school annual examination conducted by the Federal Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education, Islamabad as the management, despite striving hard, has badly failed to get the affiliation of Islamabad board.

The matriculation certificate is the only testimonial which shows date of birth of a student and ispresented everywhere for further higher studies.

Just visualise the plight of a successful student who will be conferred on a certificate without showing the name of the school he attended for 10 years.

2. The school management has already advertised ulmission notice for the new academic year without clearly stating up to which class.

It means there is something wrong in the bottom and the management has read the writing on the wall. It looks they could not get Islamahad board's affiliations.

It looks they could not get Islamahad board's affilia-tion for the forthcoming examination. Is it so? We request the management to clarify and not keep the parents and students in dark, and we mean it.

3. In short, we would like to suggest the school-management to operate the school up to 8th class only as it is beyond their approach to get the school affiliated with the Federal Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education Islamshad

Alert for an unwanted war

BARAMULLA, India, (AP): An estimated 240,000 Indian soldiers backed by armour and air cover are stationed in Kashmir, ready tobattle Pakistan in the event of a war both sides say they are trying to avoid. A provocation or a miscalculation sparked by the Muslim insurgency in the Indian-ruled part of Kashmir risks turning the disputed mountains and valleys into a war zone for the third time since 1947 Kashmir is claimed by both India and Pakistan, uneasy neighbours whose independence from Britain has been marred by violence for four decades because their Hindu and Muslim populations haven't been able to live in peace. Clashes

On the Indian side of the 41-year-old ceasefire line, more than 170 people have died in the past seven weeks in clashes between Kash-miri Muslim secessionists and the predominantly Hindu Indian arms and paramilitary ario. Both sides are ready," a retired Indian infantry officer said in Srinagar, speaking on condition of anonymity. "But the irony of the situation is that both sides, on political platforms, claim day after day that they do not want

In Baramulla, a major Indian army base and the last town before the India-Pakistan ceasefire line, the scene resembles one out of a World War II movie: Long convoys of army trucks and artillery draped with tarpaulins head to the frontier. Soldiers in battle fatigues practice ground advance tactics. Live rifle rounds are fired at targets.

Baramulla is 40 kilometres (24 miles) from the frontier - and the Pakistani Army.

"The military activity you see here is more or less normal," said Chewang Phunsog, chief civilian administrator of the two strategic border districts of Baramulia and Kupwara. War

"I do not know if a war is in the cards, but if we are drawn into it, the other side will not find us lacking," he said. A Pakistani Defence Ministry spokesman in Islamabad said there has been a build-up of

Indian troops along the frontier. "We think it is primarily for internal security, but it can always be used (against Pakistan) once it's there," he said. Under standing briefing regulations, the spokesman cannot be identified. Indian military sources said the number of troops deployed in Jammu-Kashmir, the only

The first India-Pakistan war was in 1948. It officially ended with the declaration of a United Nations-sponsored ceasefire in January 1949. Since then, Kashmir has been divided bet-ween mostly Hindu India and predominantly Muslim Pakistan.

Gains

The second war over Kashmir, in 1965, lasted 16 days and ended with no real gains for The countries went to war a third time in 1971, but not over Kashmir. India entered war between east Pakistan and west Pakistan and helped transform east Pakistan into the independent nation of Bangladesh. Both India and Pakistan have continued their military build-ups since then.

On paper, India has a massive advantage.

mond and took the marked finesse of the eight. East had no recourse. If the defender refused to ruff declarer would simply continue diamonds until East did, and the ace of hearts would still be in dummy as an entry to any uncashed diamonds.

So East did as well as possible by ruffing and shifting to a club. Declarer was not tempted. After shooting up with the ace. South crossed to the ace of hearts and cashed the good diamonds, discarding two clubs from hand.

Note that had South not unblocked both the ten and nine of diamonds East could defeat the contract by refusing to ruff the third round of the suit. Declarer would be in hand and would be an entry short monds. Alternatively, East could ruff the second round of diamonds The defenders started with three and the suit would be blocked.

YOUR STARS

If you do not beware you are likely to make yourself ridiculous. Check your facts or you will make a grave mistake. Do not allow your emotions to rule but do not repress them either. Be considerate.

Avoid doing your own repairs unless you really know what you are about. Everything looks a little bleak but the outlook is fair. Do not be late if you have been invited. Be

You are likely to feel at your best and should try to take it easy for a while. Your lucky numbers are 12 and 35. Make sure you get enough exercise but nothing too exhausting. Do not pretend to be what you know you are not. Be accurate.

Try to take your mind off work for the day. Seek to make the most of what you have instead of always bemoaning what you had not got. Take a little more regular but none too violent exercise. Be punctual.

Make sure you do not keep others waiting. You will not realise until after what a lucky escape you have had. Make sure do not eat or drink more than you know you should and vary your diet. Be

You will not feel very energetic but you must not become lethargic. Something you had hoped would will come to pass. However some-thing you also hoped would hap-pen will not. Be responsive.

You will be proved right but you should not say 'I told you so': you could as easily have been wrong. You will be able to do something to please your partner and should do so. Avoid acting on impulse and do not rely on guesswork. Be sincere.

A temptation to do the first things that comes to mind must be firmly resisted. Limits whether of speeds or of propriety should be adhered to. If you have made a promise be sure to keep it. Be tolerant.

You should make sure you do not take any undue risks with your health. However nor should you think that everything you do is bad for your health. Avoid all kinds of exaggeration and do not go to extremes. Be generous.

You will be able to avail yourself of a good opportunity only if you are decisive and fast. Avoid straining your eyes but also try not to become too dependant on glasses. Do not take any risks when on the road, walking or driving. Be versatile.

Capricom

You are all too liable to act on impulse and should try to restrain yourself. Something you have been learning will now become much easier to apply, but you must not relax your efforts, a lot remains to Something you had hoped would will happen but it will prove to be a little disappointing. Never mind, it might have been a lot worse. Avoid telling others precisely what you think of them. Be more patient.

Resolution number 40 on early elections

PROPOSED Senate Resolution No. 40 and its treatment showed up the uninformed and unenlightening commentary one finds in the media. The measure calls for earlier national elections (now set for May 11, 1992).

Sen. Ernie Maceda had originally filed it as sole author. Butz Aquino, Boy Herrera and I agreed to co-author it, when later asked. Before I agreed, however, I told Manong Ernie that I would bat for a January, 1992 election with th term of the winners to commence on February 25, 1992. That should get it past the military bass agreement issue which would be resolved definitively in 1991.

Where is the "snap" in an election two years away?

with the four-mouth bonus of President Cory and Vice-President Doy. They were legitimately elected only to a term of six years, to end on February 25, 1992. The free ride of up to June 30, 1992 was given in 1987, when the Constitution was ratified and the bonus came on piggyback.

Why was their term extended? Precisely, because, it was thought that on May 11, 1992 1) we could save by having a single, simultaneous and synchronised election, from the President down to the municipal officials; and 2) we would reduce political activity.

That is why the thrust of the resolution was to de-synchronise, de-clog and de-congest the 1992 elections. But Nietzsche has said that forgeting purposes is the most common form of

I submit that if we are faithful to the Constitution, we cannot break up the May 11, 1992, election without amending the basic law. Otherwise, the extension of the term of the President and the Vice president would be senseless.

Of course, the Supreme Court may choose to disregard the clear intent of the Constitutional Commission — as may be seen in the Con-Com debates - and the sovereign people; it error would then become the law of the land. It's been known to happen. Social engineering, judicial statesmanship, etc., see?

As early as January 1988, I identified the jammed 1992 elections problem and filed my Concurrent Resolution No. 10 to look into the matter.

Why not lengthen the terms of th local officials? Again, the Constitution does not seem to allow

Even an early election for municipal officials would create the spectre of lameducks serving for too long before their con-stitutional term ends on June 30, 1992. And we would have a long "holiday" of politics, politics, politics. And why punish those who were elected the last, only in

Why not shorten then the terms of the President and the Vice President? We are not stricily speaking, going to do that. We will just honour the original understanding of six years, no more, no less.

And Congress, which is look-ing into the dilemma, would look more credible if its members would shorten their terms and sacrifice. (personally, any reasonable and peaceful Early Retirement Programme for me I can accept and live with).

Our motives as co-authors of Resolution No. 40 were ques-tioned, which was the "most unkind act of all." Even those who have been taking of the need to amend the Constitution suddenly said that it would be "tinkering," as if doing something the very same Constitution allows is wrong. (It does not allow any amendment by the people themselves through a popular initiative for five years from 1987; therefore, the mode of constituent assembly or a constitutional convention is allowed so as to improve upon an imperfect work put together very quickly in 1986.) And yet, I have since modified my views. Maybe it is not true that the three-feet long ballot which would require 20 minutes for the average voter to fill up would present overwhelming problems. Maybe less than ten.

What the sovereign people at the lofty Constitution p together, let no mere man ar ordinary statute put asunder.

Can this be Shell?

SHELL fans can't believe their eyes. Is it really the PBA's former whipping boys, its bridesmaids, its also-rans that are now zooming their way to kingdom come?

If only their friends could see them now. Formula Shell has broken out of its Shell — in a manner of speaking. Where did it get all that glitz, all that smoothness, all that airtight defense?

It could be Bobby Parks. He's the most obvious variable that's been injected into the Shell brew. It could be Bobby's way of whipping up this team of former teammates and eager rookies. Could be the discipline and the new kills he's taught his men.

Bobby's dead serious about this coaching job. It's said he sent Shell no less than 50 different plays by mail when he was first informed he would coach the team. And the way Shell players are moving these days, it is clear that Bobby has upped and taught them some snazzy new tricks. Look what's happened to the Shell team!

Take note of them on the offensive. They're passing well, running well and spotting the open man with deadly accuracy. Suddenly there's communication. Everyone knows what everybody's doing. Players can anticipate what their teammates will do, where they're going to

See. Benjie Paras and Bobby Parks are sharing the load equally and opening up other guys for great opportunities. Arnie Tuadles snipes intermittently from the perimeter or three-point country. Whoever's free goes for the goal or passes to someone with a better advantage. Basic basketball, yes. But deadly as well...

Look, Calvin Tuadles has ripened into a hell of a guard. Whoever is Calvin's prey has to bleed for his goals and his positive moves. Allan Caidic had an unbelievably low yield when he was designated Calvin Tuad-les's man. Carlito Mejos was likewise defanged.

Leo Austria is back in action too and doing what he does best: running. Ably directing play whenever Ronnie Magsanoc takes off his five-star pin, Leo Austria is showing us why his benching last year was one of the cardinal sins of Philippine basketball. Now we have a recharged. revitalised Leo Austria.

And the rookies. Who would that well? They have effectively blended into the team. Jojo Martin, Richard Bognot and Aris Franco truly look like they belong. Maybe it's the seminar the Shell players underwent last January. Remember that project that stranded them up in Baguio during the December Coup? Formula Shell management followed up on the unfinished business and completed the project at the Manila Peninsula a month after. One of the goals of that seminar was for Shell players to develop to their fullet potentials physically, mentally, emotionally. It was a mind, body and spirit workout. It seems to complement the physical training so well. Or perhaps Shell really did its homework-physically speaking. It was the first team out of the Third Conference race last year. It had ample time to prepare for the new decade. Remember the saying that goes: "When God closes a door, he opens a window? God opened a window for Shell by giving them the chance to practice early. While the other teams were just winding up their respective finals bids, Shell was already up and practicing for the next season. Even before the coup, Shell was deep into M.W.F practice sessions at the Ultra. Call that a good head start.

· So now the results are in. You can see it in the perfect running game, the air-tight defense, the help-defense. "If Shell plays this way forever, they can easily beat Purefoods and San Miguel," said one avid PBA aficionado. This observation is shared by many. So far Shell has been the msot consistent team in the PBA. It thrashed its first two opponents handily, and authoritatively. Shell took the perk out of presto in their first game and melted the Tivolis right there on the hardcourt. They took the fizzle out of Pepsi too as the Zoom Masters completely dominated the play from whistle time to buzzer sound.

Furthermore everybody from top man agreement down to ball boy - seems to be in the go-go thrust. Assistant coach Arlene Rodriguez is actively coa-ching. He too has come out of his Shell chairman and PBA

president. Rey Marquez, is cautious and a bit apprehensive

Now it seems to have form The Formula. So who's to blam Shell for running to Bobby Park for help after its history of faile expeditions? The man is both capable and unselfish (he is shar ing what he knows with our loca guys - a more efficient way to attend coaching school), and what counts is he's delivering the results. .

For sure Shell and Bobbs Parks will continue to reap to gripes and attacks of the BCAi and people of similar thinking But that they don't mind st long as Shell keeps on winning it's performance that counts ultimately. And so far, so great The Zoom Masters have finally seemed to find their bearings Everything's in high gear.

AND OH YES! A lot of Shell fans are missing the presence of gritty guard-forward, lay Ramirez, on the court, lay, who is known for his hard but spirited enforcing style, has been relegated to reserve status for the First Conference. Many Shell fans find this a pity. Jay has been one of the spark plugs and "old dependables" of the Shell fearth.

Yana Mejia was a bright and happy 13-year-old. She was a student at St Scholastica's College, who enjoyed regaling her parents, Oscar and Boots Mejia, with her musical talents. One weekend, Oscar and Boots, Yana, her brothers, and cousins were on their way to SM

The road back to recovery, for Boots, was fraught with pain and frustration. On top of her anguish at the loss of her child, there was the fruitless attempt to bring the errant driver and the bus company to justice.

But as soon as Boots could get into a wheelchair, she bagan reporting for work at the Philippine Daily Inquirer, where she is vice-president for administra-tion. Work, after all, is one of the best therapies for a personal

When I first met her, she was already out of the chair and could walk with crutches — but no crutch could prop up her broken heart as she told me her story, hoping I could write about it and perhaps call the attention of the powers — that be so that the unscrupulous operators of the bus company would be brought to court.

Somehow I never got to write that story, and there were times when I felt a bit guilty as I came across my copy of Boots' complaint filed with the fiscal. Yet the story refused to gel.

Now I know why. The story wanted to have a happy ending. Change "happy" to "ecstatic," because that's the way Boots feels now.

Boots soon made the shift from cruiches to cane, then to limping along by herself.

Then she got pregnant. Her doctor was furious. He had specifically warned her against that eventuality because her hip was still healing and might not be able to carry the burden of a child and she might wind up in a wheelchair again.

But, except for the occasional pain after a tiring day, Boots didn't have much trouble all through her pregnancy, and her mood changed to hopefulness—especially after I "guessed" that her child would be a girl, a replacement for Yana

So when the child came, they named her Ericka, Not too long ago, while I was telling her about Frank Regis and his niece, Jinky, she asked me to find out from them if it was possible that the spirit of Yana has returned to her in the person of Ericka. Her instincts, or mother's intuition, gave her the feeling that her new baby was really Yana.

A few nights ago, while we were having dinner at MacDonald's on Greenbelt, Frank posed the question to Cryssie, Jinky's crystal guide who lives in her crystal ball.

Cryssie's answer was: "No sweat. Yes. She is back to continue her learning ... No sweat." We looked at each other, rather surprised by the slang expression but Cryssie, like the other guides and masters, usually spoke very formal English. The following day, I reported the happy news to Boots over the telephone. After I quoted the answer, I thought the line had gone dead because there was utter silence at the other end. "Boots?" I said. "The answer

So that was why she couldn't answer me right away and I thought the line had gone dead.

"I was stunned!" I knew she was crying now — but in ecstacy, not in sorrow. "I think we have to take very good care of her now that we have been given this second chance to have her," she concluded.

As a postscript, we asked Cryssie another question which has been bugging us for years: When does a soul enter the

According to our Guide, the soul of an animal enters its body at birth. In human beings, the soul enters the foetus during its early stages of development, but may come out once in a while if further processing is desired.

We wanted a more specific answer: what month? We were told that it could be anytime within the first two months. But from the moment of conception, a soul is already assigned to the foetus, hence abortion even at the earliest stage of pregnancy is against the laws of karma and reincarnation.

"Would you like to make another exciting discovery?" Cryssie teased. Yes, of course. Talk to the child in the womb," she advised. Because even if the baby is not yet fully formed, the soul is already intact and can start receiving information, love, and education.

The practice of talking to your baby while it is still in the womb was recently been advised by several world-renowned doctors, and I know a few mother who have tried it. One is Pops Fernandez, who used to sing to Robin while he was still in her tummy, and surrounded herself with music, to make sure that her child would grow up to be a musiclover, if not a musician like his parents. Today, even if he can't talk too well yet. Robin can already carry a tune.

Maybe this can be one way to prevent a miscarriage: talk to the spirit of the baby in your tummy. Make it feel Loved and wanted. Ask it to stay with you so both of you can contribute to each other's evolution.

Boots is now seeking an audience with Cryssie and the other masters, because she has so many questions to ask. Don't we

ALMOST three weeks after Emil had been freed, I walked into the billiard hall and saw him at his favourite spot, and from the way the muscles were jumping in his jaw, I knew that he was plunged back into the depths of bitterness and melancholy. I didn't have to say anything. Right away, he let me know what was on his mind.

"This is it boy," he said. "They finally caught up with me. I knew it was gonna happen; It was only a matter of time."

He gave me a twisted smile. "Remember what I said about ex-cons? Well, now you know I was right. Nobody gives a con a break. Nobody." He slammed his fist against the wall. "I was fired today."

I stared at him. He'd been working for this accounting firm longer than I remembered, and the news that he was fired came as a surprise and shock. I mumbled something sympathetic to him.

Emil said, "Don't make any mistakes, boy. I know why I got the axe. They gave me a lot of bull about hard times, but I know different. They dropped me because I'm a con, and nobody wants a con on their But, Emil, do they even know about -

Of course they know. What do you think I am blind or something?"
As a matter of fact, Emil is pretty blind, without his glasses. "I know the score, boy," he continued. "That's the way all of them are. One false step, one prison record, and click, out you go." But maybe it's true, Emil. Maybe times are hard. I've been out of

He looked at me pityingly. "You're real innocent. And what do you think will happen when I go looking for a job? What do you think they'll say when they know about me?" I couldn't answer him. I felt so bad that I could hardly talk. After all I didn't know so much about the business world. Maybe it was true.

"I'm sorry, Emil." I said miserably. "Don't worry about it," Emil said steely-eyed. "I won't have any trouble. There's more than one way to make money without slaving away for some big shot company."

"But I thought you like accounting?" "There's something I like better. I got plans, kid, big plans. I haven't get 'em all worked out yet, but I'll come up with them, no sweat. Any

I knew what he meant, but I didn't want to say it. There was a caper cooking in Emil's evil brain, a caper that he intended as more than a mental exercise. I could only hope and pray that I wouldn't have to take

But I was wrong. A week later, when we were both still looking for work, Emil telephoned me to stress the urgency of keeping our date at the billiard hall: a needless reminder. But it was obvious that his appointment had a greater significance than usual. I was immediately thrown into a minor panic; so much that I botched up an interview that afternoon. I was filling out a resume form at a big company looking for messengers, and where the little dotted line said sex, I filled in Office messenger. The guy doing the interview looked at me kind of funny, and what do you expect, I didn't get the job. Emil was reading comics when I entered the billiard hall, and when I sat down, I saw that the comics concealed a meticulous drawing that looked like the kind of floor plan you used to see in front of detective novels. He passed the comics over to me, his eyeballs shifting from side to side, and I peered at the thing without knowing whether he wanted me to read the comics or th diagram. I began to giggle, nervously and

"What's so funny? Can't you see what it is?" "I don't know." I gulped. To tell you the truth, I was afraid of Emil when he acted like this.

"It's a penthouse apartment," Emil said. "The guy who owns it is loaded. And I mean loaded.'

"His name's Claro Gorgonio, and he's on of my boss's clients. My exboss. I used to work on his books once in a while, and sometimes I went up to his apartment to pick up things for the company. I never met him himself, but know he's a rich guy. Quite a layout, huh?"

I looked at the diagram again, but it didn't make any sense to me. No diagram ever did. But I didn't want Emil to know how dumb I was, So I nodded my had.

"Now this here's a private elevator." Emil said, pointing with his finger. "It lets off the foyer of the apartment. But there's also another elevator, a building elevator. The private elevator's self-operating, but the building elevator has a man running it. You got to have a key to work the private elevator, and it takes you right into the apartment. Get

I shook my head.

Emil punched my arm.

"What's the matter with you? If you got a key to the private elevator, you don't need a key to the door of the penthouse. All you do is get in the elevator and you're inside the apartment, with a buzzer; otherwise you have to use a key. Now the building operator, he's a guy named Bonnie. and sometimes he leaves his elevator to take a little rest down in the basement. I've been timing him for the last three night, and it runs about like this.'

He pulled out a sheet of paper with a lot of neat numbers in a long

"Now do you get the picture? All we gotta do is hang around until Bonnie takes off for his rest, slip the key into the private elevator, and we got it made. There must be thousands of pesos lying around that For the first time. I realised that Emil was talking about burglary.

"Wow," I said, "You mean you're gonna rob the place?" "What else am I talking about, you fool? We won't have any trouble. They don't have any kids or stay-in maids or — "We?" I squeaked.

He punched my arm again, and quickly canvassed the people at the other tables. Nobody appeared to be listening, so he went on. I was now sweating with fright. I don't know if I can refuse him this time. But I have to. Robbery, after all, or just the thought of it scares me like death.

LANAO DEL SUR: The candidacy of Sultan Mohammad Mangacop Jimmy Bangcola, who is running for assemblyman in the 2nd district of Lanao del Sur under the NP banner, has been unanimously endorsed by leaders of several socio-civic organisations and tribal groups in Muslim Mindanao autonomous region election.

Sultan Bangcola, former mayor of Butig, Lanao del Sur, was described by youth and civic leaders as "defender of the common man and proponent of social justice." We welcomed the candidacy of Sultan Jimmy Bangcola as a perfect combination of a professional, politician, and military man who can accelerate the implementation of government programmes and reforms in the four Mindanao Muslim autonomous provinces," the leaders said.

Bangcola has served the four autonomous provinces in different capacities as constabulary officer (retired PC colonel) with outstanding performance having received several awards from the AFP and civic organisations.

MANILA: Local government Secretary Luis T. Santos suspended Qurino Gov. Mariano J. Pimentel from office for 90 days for alleged dishonesty and misconduct. He was administratively charged before the Depart-ment of Local Government (DLG) under Sec 60 of the Local Government Code for alledged abuse of authority, dishonesty, and misconduct by Qurino provincial board members Nestor B. Gatchalian, Pedro L. Bacani, Alfredo Agapito, Leandro C. Cardena, Florencio P. Ruiz, and Vice-Gov. Josie Castillo

In a 14-page decision last Feb 12, it appeared that Pimentel had allegedly falsified and manipulated facts of excerpts of minutes of the provincial board.

Asuncion issued a warrant against Miss Lorena after she failed to appear for arraignment of charges of violation of the Dangerous Drugs Law filed against her. the court likewise ordered the confiscation of P40,000 cash bond she had posted.

Lorena was arrested by Narcotics Command operatives following a raid on her residence at 18 Sorsogon St, West Avenue, QC. Seized fromher house were shabu powder and several sticks of dried marijuana cigarettes.

Narcom probers filed two counts of illegal possession of illegal drugs against Lorena who was comitted to the Quezon City jail.

Right after the filing of the cases, the movie actress posted a P40,000 cash bond for her release from military custody.

Asuncion told reporters that he set the arraignment of the cases against Lorena yesterday but the movie actress failed to appear.

A lawyer representing her told the court that his client was ill. However, he failed to present a medical certificate to support his claim.

Asuncion said the failure of Lorena's counsel to present the needed medical certificate prompted the court to issue a bench warrant for her arrest.

BALAYAN, Batangas: The incumbent members of the board of directors of the Batangas Sugar Central Inc. (BSCI) were unanimously reelected during the annual stockholders meeting held last Feb 10 in the compound of the sugar, central in this

Re-elected directors were Soledad L. Dolor, Fe Dolor Serrano, Federico M. Serrano, Danilo L. Dolor, Benjamin S. Martinez, Edna P. Alaras, Victoria Mangahas, Jose Feliciano, Jose Virata Jamir, Victor Pineda Jr and Luis T. Ramos.

Industrialist-banker Soledad Dolor, who presided over the stockholders meeting was re-elected chairperson of the board, former congressman Federico M. Serrano, president; Fe Dolor Serrano, vice-chairperson; and lawyer Ricardo T. Diaz, corporate secretary.

The BSCI, a 100 per cent Filipino-owned company. became a successful venture through the efforts of the Dolor-Serrano clan which started its milling operation during the crop year 1968-69.

Minority stockholders led by lawyers Eduardo S. Martinez and former newspaperman Reynaldo B. Castelo praised the sugar central's new roads and bridges which made the remotest barangays in the province accessible to land transportation.

President Serrano reported in his message to the stockholders that the workers in the central are receiving higher wages than those of some firms, including those situated in Metro Manila.

Other executives who are assisting in the operation of the central are Teofisto Quintas, manager; Arnaldo Borja, chief accountant; Augusto Reyes, field operation manager, and Rodolfo Salanguit, factory manager.

BALANGA, Bataan: Four high-speed sewing machines worth $3,000 (roughly P66,000) were recently donated by the US Peace Corps Volunteer to the Abucay Youth Organisation in Abucay, this province. PCV director Paul Cover-dell turned over the donation to the organisation. One of the machines has an edging device that could enable the user to work on hems and connect embroidery pieces in a record time.

Peace Corps volunteer Robin Masengale, who has been assigned to the local office of the Department of Agriculture, worked for the acquisition of the machines. Technical skills are needed to operate them.

The few workers skilled in the operation of high speed machines could not cope up with the order for ready-towear items. Efforts to develop technical skills have been difficult because the available machines have to be repaired most of the time.

The PCV's office for small projects assistance financed similar projects in Thailand, Morocco, Dominica Republic, and Costa Rica. Dominican

The turnover of the donation was witnessed by US Peace Corps volunteer director Coverdell, US Peace Corps-Philippines director Jim Lohman, Ms Theresa del Rosario, Ms Robin Masengale, and agriculture department personnel.

BAGUIO CITY: A conciliation meeting between management and labour at the strike-bound Philex Mines in Padcal, Tuba, Benguet resumed on Jan 2, last in Manila. The negotiations ran into a deadlock during the yuletide. This developed when former labour secretary Franklin Drilon and lawyer Benny Laguesma, chief of the National Concilliation and Mediation Board (NCMB), failed to resolve the issues between management and labour during its nine-hour negotiation last Dec 27.

More than 6,000 miners of Philex Mines went on strike last Dec 22 when management failed to give them their 16th-month pay which should have been computed under a new rate.

The striking workers are under the umbrella of the National Miners, and Allied Workers Union (Namawu). John Badongen is the president of the Philix union. Ben Acantilado, Namawu secretary-general, said that the Philex Mines workers are insisting on their demand for a 16th-month pay computed under the new rate because they said that the company, which is one of the biggest copper-producing mines in the country, can very well afford to give it.

MANILA: A monthly sales record of P99.4 million was chalked up in December by BF Homes Inc., a real estate developer. The company, which was rehabilitated only in April 1988, has now a total sales revenue of P822 million.

The sales consist mainly of purchases made after the failed coup, which, according to industry sources, is a remarkable development. BF Homes expects more sales in 1990, saying its current inventories are within the reach of the middle-income strata.

A group of foreign contractors currently working on BF Homes Quezon City is negotiating for bigger development projects.

Another group, the China Shanghai Corporation for Foreign, Economic and Technical Co-operation is currently doing a P 96 million turnkey housing contract in Las Pinas and Quezon City. Plans by this entity for medium-rise housing units in BF Paranaque are under way.

In addition, an investment mission from Taiwan will start negotiations on development projects in Manila on June 10, 1990.

With these developments, complete rehabilitation of BF Homes is expected by 1990, or two-and-half years ahead of schedule.

BONGAO, Tawi Tawi: Department of Local Government (DLG) region 9 director Abdulgadir Ibrahim resigned recently from the government to run for regional assemblyman in Tawi-Tawi during the Feb 17 elections in the newly formed Muslin Mindanao autonomous region. "It was the most painful decision I have made in my life," Ibrahim, a lawyer, said when he filed his certificate of candidacy last week with the Commission on Elections.

Ibrahim added his leaving the DLG was also a financial sacrifice since as a director he was receiving a basic monthly salary of P15,000 and some regular allowances while a regional legislator in the new political set-up will get only P10,000 a month.

STA CRUZ, Laguna: The model barangays of Laguna were presented the "Gawad Huwarang Barangay" awards the other day at the Provincial Cultural Centre nasium of the Legarda Elementary School (LES) on J. Fajardo St. in Sampaloc, Manila has been converted into a mini-hospital for a free day-long medical and surgical clinic.

The University of Santo Tomas (UST) medical missions headed by Dr Willian L. Olalia and Orlando C. Rodriguez of the UST medical student body are slated to treat 3,000 needy patients during the clinic. UST medical missions committee vice-president Michael P. Ramos said 60 practising and student doctors and nurses will provide free services to needy school children, teachers and residents of neighbouring barangays. Sponsored by the LES

Alumni Association (LE-SAA), led by Dr Ofelia M. Carague, the free clinic is an offshoot of a recent health survey which indicated that a number of school children are malnourished and are suffering from pulmonary diseases. Carague said free medi-

OUEZON CITY: A young businesswoman and former Saudia flight stewardess could have nothing better for a belated birthday gift than hitting the P6.6 million slot machines jackpot last Jan 25, the biggest in Philippine casino history.

Miss Mylene Tan, 26, single, a resident of Quezon City. won P6,591,020 in the Inter-City Superlink Jackpot prize at Casino Filipino branch in the Manila Pavilion Hotel, said the Philipine Amusement and Gaming Corp., which runs the country's eight Manilyn Reynes denies that she and her fellow singer, Ogie Alcasid, are more than friends. "He is not even courting me," she whimpers. Manilyn admits, though, that early last year she and Keempee de Leon were steadies. They broke off for reasons, she says, which she'd rather not reveal.

But, she gushes, she enjoyed their relationship while it lasted. "I hope he did, too," Manilyn adds. Manilyn is currently being dubbed as the country's biggest teen musical idol. Only last Dec, she was presented the Monster Record Award for best per-

-arouk Abdul Aziz fulfils his lifetime dream

Arab Times staff

EGYPTIAN Farouk Abdul Aziz was brought up on a diet of movies, music, and arts - the three merging to form a part of his personality.

To Farouk, presenter of Cine Club and director of Kuwait's Cine Club, cinema means a lifetime of thrills, fulfilling his creativity, making him complete.

The 43-year-old bachelor. reclines on his leather chair in his office at the Kuwait Cine Club headquarters in Bneid Al Qar as he talks about his romance with cinema. There is a glow in his intense eyes as he subconsciously indulges in theatrical postures to make a point

When the lights go off in a cinema hall, the actor in him emerges as the real Farouk takes a back seat, and he absorbs, fantasises, becoming a part of celluloid dreams.

"It's been a very, very, very long dream," says Farouk, emphasising each word, as if someone might just miss the

He was introduced to cinema at a very early age, maybe one, maybe two. But he has vivid memories of his weekly trips to the cinema with his father. He was three years old. Sitting in the cinema halls, he let his imagination run wild. He would become the hero, the villian, or any other character that caught his fantasy. He wanted to be one of the stars on the screen.

At home, he would play-act the roles he saw on the silver screen. He recalls: "I would stand in front of the mirror and once be the cowboy or the romancer or anything that caught my fancy. "His mother was aghast. She thought he has gone nuts. Soon, she came to grips with reality: Farouk just wanted to be the centre of attraction.

At the age of 10, he had already started a cinema club for the neighbourhood kids, who thronged his room to watch the crude film he had collected from the local cinema hall in his hometown in Egypt's Delta region.

Each morning he would walk and collect the cuttings, bring them home and glue them into eight-minute features. There would be a one-minute clip from an Arabic film followed by a bit from an English film and so on. With a crude projector, given as a present by his father, he was in business, charging a penny for the "filming" in his room. The walls in his room decorated with life-size posters of his heroes like John Wayne and Randolph Scott. When he was on his own, he felt close to them, and a part of movies. He longed to be one of the faces ... an actor, but his inherent timidity prevailed. He recoiled at the prospect of taking an active part in dramatics at school. "I just could not think about going on stage" he recalls. He was shy, partly, was due to five years schooling in a girls school, where he had gone for a year at the age of five and stayed for the next five, because the headmistress had fallen in love with him.

"I became introspective and inhibited, and when I was finally transferred to the boys division, could not cope with the rough world," he said.

He was so accustomed to gentleness, broke into tears each time a fight broke out in the boys school; or when a teacher raised his voice, "The teacher would scold another student, but I cried anyway" he said. Those were turbulent years for young Farouk; he retreated into a world of his own. His sobbing outbursts lessened, but did not vanish. When he moved to Cairo and was among the five students selected from 1,500 applicants for the acting course at the Higher Institute for Cinema, it was because he was petrified, and cried.

"As my role demanded an emotional outburst, I was considered highly realistic," he chuckies.

Actor Noor Al Shariff, who is now at the peak of his career, and actress Shams Baroodi, who quit films at the peak of her career, were also selected at that time.

truant, and his influential uncle pulled strings to have the 16year-old lad outed from the Ins-

"I was asked to get out by the dean," said Farouk. The dean was Mohammed Kareem, the first Egyptian actor and filmmaker, a fearsome personality who intimidated the boy.

He was down but not out and laid out a strategy revolving around cinema, studying literary and film criticism, set up the first cinema club at Cairo University and the first Egyptian Cinema Club in Cairo. He branched out into journalism and writing, and became a prolific writer of children's stories and comic strips and later, radio programmes, including The Gates of Cairo and Wind Whistles, a series on Omani navigator Ibn Majed, who travelled to China and India in the 16th century. He also did literary translation for the radio and produced and voiced a series on the life of Scott Fitzgerald.

This experience laid the foundations of what has now developed into a penchant for writing scripts and screenplays.

His first scripts were for "The Film Archives, a cinema show on Cairo TV. Always innovative, he took to analysing the movies he screened on the show and talked to people about the social, economic, political and religious contents of movies.

Farouk, inadvertently, got explosive footage; his non-con-formist attitude made the authorities jittery; they warned him but let the show go on. But a live interview with a Cuban filmmaker Thomas Guthrie Alia abruptly ended his two-year on and-off affair with television in Cairo.

The mid-70s was an era of strict censorship. After Alia dis-cussed his film Lucia, covering of Fidel Castro, the government decided to call it a day for Farouk.

"When you are young, you are an idealist, and make-belief that you can change the world," reflects Farouk. Today, time, and age, has mellowed his idealism making him more realistic.

Yet the ideal survives — his romance with cinema. He has produced several documentaries and docudramas, including an 18-hour serial, Silk Road, produced in collaboration with

Sheikh Ali arrives in Budapest on Monday

Kuwait to step up ties

VIENNA, March 10, (Kuna): Knwait's Oil Minister Sheikh Ali Al Khalifa arrives in Budapest Monday on an official four-day visit for talks with senior Hungarian officials on means of expanding bilateral co-operation in oil and energy fields.

Kuwait's ambassador to Austria and non-resident ambassador to Hungary Abdul Hamid Al Awadhi told Kuna here today that Sheikh Ali will also discuss joint cooperation in the field of oil industry.

He underlined that Kuwait maintained traditional relational relationships to the state of the transfer political over-tions with Hungary but noted that ongoing political openness and economic reforms in that East European nation could serve as an incentive for expanding co-operation in various important investment sectors especially in oil and energy which occupy a major portion in Hungarian industrial infrastructure Awadhi said that Hungary, in its capacity as an oil importing country, provides opportunities for bilateral co-operation in that vital sector in view of Kuwait's renouned experience in petrochemicals and marketing oil

ould serve as a spring board for boosting Kuwaiti presence in the oil and energy sector in East European markets in view of that country's role in the area in addition to its distinctive geographic position as a bridge between East and West Europe.

omic experts believe that Hungary has the necessary basic industrial infrastructure to ensure success of its economic reforms, and the transition from the former governmentplanning to the open market policies.

Sheikh Ali's visit follows the conclusion of an agreement between the two countries to avoid double taxation in addition to protection and encouragement of investments during the visit of Hungarian Foreign Trade Minister Tamas Beck to Kuwait a few months ago.

Hisham Nazer of Saudi Arabia yesterday held out the possibility of further "downstream" joint ventures in the United States as well as in Europe and the Far East.

Nazer spoke at a business conference on Saudi-US relations, sponsored by New York University in co-operation with the US-Arab Chamber of Commerce.

In November 1988, Saudi Arabia bought a 50 per cent interest in three American refineries owned by Texaco Inc., and set up a joint venture with Texaco under the name

"There are others to follow Star," Nazer said.
Star imported virtually all of its 539 million barrels of oil

Nazer said Saudi Arabia also looks at the US strategic petroleum reserve as a possible outlet for its oil.

Bank conducts training programme

WITHIN the framework of its personnel training and development programme, the Commercial Bank of Kuwait recently organised two training courses for selected groups of employees. The first course which dealt with credit analysis was attended by 22 middle management personnel from the credit area. The Bank's Training Centre in co-operation with the Corporate Banking Division prepared a programme for this three-week course. There were three major objectives for the course - firstly to refresh trainees general credit knowledge, asset conversion cycle, cash flow analysis and forecests; secondly to enable them to identify the basic issues and factors in order to reach a common understanding of unified credit proposal presentation for sound credit decisions; and thirdly to improve credit appraisal process in the Commercial Bank of Kuwait.

The programme which consisted of three phases tackled various issues such as qualititative and quantitive analysis and credit risk analysis. It also included practical training on credit proposal presentation. The course condcluded on 21st of February 1990 with an open discussion between the trainees and some members of the bank's senior management.

The second course which was offered by the Treasury Division in co-ordination with the Training Centre focussed on the rapid changes in the local and international money markets and the impact of political and economic changes on exchange rate fluctuations.

It also dealt with, selling of the bank's products and services in a highly competitive market.

Jordanian premier for Riyadh

AMMAN, Jordan, March 10, (AP): Prime Minister Mudar Badran left for Saudi Arabia today for talks with Saudi officials on regional develop-ments and Jordan's economic problems.

A well-informed Jordanian official said Badran "was expected to resume talks with Saudi officials on Jordan's troubled economy and the kingdom's serious financial crisis."

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said that Badran will also brief Saudis on King Hussein's recent efforts to halt Soviet Jewish immigration to Israel and the occupied

On Feb 15, Hussein visited the Saudi kingdom and an official announcement then reported that Hussein and Saudi Arabia's King Fahd "discussed economic and financial ties." Later that month, Hussein also toured Kuwait, Bahrain, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates and Iraq. The Jordanian official said Hussein's tour to the Gulf was aimed at "securing stable aid from our brethren there to help this country overcome its serious financial troubles." Jordan built up an $8.3 billion foreign debt which King Hussein blamed on the shortfall of aid from oil-rich Gulf states.

The official Petra News Agency said Badran was carring a letter to King Fahd from King

Petra did not disclose the contents of the letter, but the Jordanian official said it "dealt with King Hussein's talks with Europe's leaders on Arab efforts to reach a peaceful settlement to the Arab-Israeli conflict."

Hussein is in the United Kingdom for discussions with British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on Soviet Jewish immigration to Israel and Arab fears that they will be settled in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. He held similar talks with French President François Mitterrand last week in Paris.

Jordan is especially worried because it fears massive Jewish settlement in the occupied territories could lead Israel to push West Bank Palestinians into its territory, triggering political and economic upheaval.

UK energy minister in Oman for talks

MUSCAT, Oman, March 10, (AP): British Energy Minister Peter Morrison conferred today with Ahmed Saeed Al Shanfari, the sultanae's Minister of Oil and Minerals, at the start of a three-nation Gulf tour that will also the take him to the United Arab Emirates and Qatar.

The official Oman News Agency said the two ministers exchanged views on several matters related to energy.

Morrison is accompanied by 75 industrialists reprsenting more than 50 oil-industry companies on a tour to expand co-operation with the Gulf countries, among the richest oil producers in the world.

At a recent dinner reception bosted by Mohamed Naser Al Sayer & Sons Est. at the Kuwait Regency Palace Hotel, a new level of huxury automobile, manufactured by Toyota Motor Corporation of Japan, was launched into the market.

In their opening speeches, Mr. Naser Mohamed Al Sayer, Chairman, and Mr Dennis A. Stickley, Managing Director and Chief Executive of Mohamed Naser Al Sayer & Sons Est., clearly stated a firm belief that with the introduction of the "Lexus 15.400", Toyota has moved into the ranks of the "giants" in humy motoring, Indeed, with a waiting list in Japan of over one year, it is not difficult to imagine that the Lexus heralds a new breed in innovation, style and finish.

The acting of the launch was both lavish and unique. After a brief visual presentation, guests were pleasantly surprised to find brief visual presentation, guests were pleasantly surprised to find the doors to the Sheikha Ballroom swing open and a Lexus LS400 driven onto superb staging fashioned in the shape of a question mark.

There was, however, no question in the minds of the guests as to whether the Lexus LS400 has attained its product philosophy which is to offer uncompromised automotive engineering, deagn, luxury and quality in a sophisticated new class of high-performance, luxury automobile.

Not surprisingly, it took 6 years, 2,300 technicians, 1,400 engineers, 450 prototypes, 4.3 million test kilometres and 300 patent applications to produce one of the finest automobiles in the market today. The Lexus LS400 not only features mechanical excellence and precision, but has been designed with the driver's and passenger's needs very much in the forefront.

This new 4-door luxury sedan is powered by a 4.0 litre V8 four cam 32-valve engine with weight-saving aluminium cylinder heads and block, plus four camshafts, four valves per cylinder and computer controlled fuel injection.

While the speed and efficiency of 260 horsepowers, coupled with a very low coefficient of drag, the lowest among top-class luxury cars, give birth to first-class motoring performance, the driver of the Lexus LS400 enjoys the highest standard of low interior noise level, and can feel confident in the security of large-diameter ventilated disc brakes and electronic anti-lock braking system.

To emphasise the painstaking design that went into achieving safety, the LS400's rack-and-pmion steering is variable power-assisted according to car speed, and the tyres of the LS400 were specially developed in line with it's performance technology.

The spacious interior of the Lexus LS400 very clearly speaks of elegance. An attentive eye to detail has ensured a subtle harmonisation of colour, texture and durability.

Inspite of the fact that Toyota has provided in the Lexus LS400. stake-of-the-art technology, Mohamed Naser Al Sayer & Sons Est. have taken one step further by developing a package of unparalleled after-sales benefits. Certainly, a buyer of an automobile in this league deserves the very best maintenance and Without a shadow of a doubt, the Lexus LS400 has set the trend for leading luxury cars of the future.

Kaifu holds top-level talks on US trade issues

TOKYO, March 10, (Reuter): Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu met his top advisers today to discuss how to resolve serious US-Japan trade disputes, but made little progress in devising a clearcut strategy.

Kaifu summoned the ministers for finance, trade and foreign affairs and urged all three to try to address barriers to trade cited by the United States.

"Difficulties will develop in Japan-US relations unless we make progress in drawing up an April mid-term report on struc-tural negotiations," Kaifu was quoted as saying by a government spokesman.

The unusual morning session in a Tokyo hotel highlighted the seriousness with which Tokyo is viewing the decline in bilateral trade relations.

Trade friction has become a major issue and as foreign minister I believe we must solve the problems in order to stabilise Japan-US relations," Taro Nakayama, Minister for Foreign Affairs, told reporters after the meeting.

But Kabun Muto, the new Minister of Japan's powerful Ministry of International Trade and Industry, said in a televised interview that the group made no decisions.

We discussed problems within our respective ministries but there were no decisions made," he said.

Kaifu called the breakfast meeting before next week's visit by US Secretary of Commerce Robert Mosbacher, who will meet the Prime Minister and

"We're carrying a caseload of (examples) as to what the Japanese can do to help open up their imports. We can talk with some specificity," Mosbacher said in Washington on Friday.

Chief Cabinet Secretary Misoji Sakamoto also attended the meeting.

In talks with US President George Bush last weekend in California, Kaifu said Japan would make progress in address-"structura! impediments" cited by Washington as barriers to trade.

American officials contend that such barriers contribute to Japan's annual $50 billion trade surplus with the United States.

Recession fears fading on Wall Street

Economy gathers momentum

NEW YORK, March 10. (AP): Recession fears have been fading on Wall Street lately, helping the stock market to rally. But not all investors are happy to see those worries go.

As spring approaches in the financial world, the US economy apparently is gathering momentum again, resuming the expansion that has been running for nearly 7 1-2 years.
Analysts still have some major reservations about the state of business activity. Interest rates are higher than many people might wish, and corporate profits remain in a slump.

Nevertheless, the view seems to be spreading that those misgivings will be alleviated as the year progresses by an increasingly healthy combination of growth and slackening inflation. That would presumably allow stock prices to climb substantially even before any marked improvement in corporate finances worked its way through to the bottom line. 'At this stage the United States is the only developed country with a declining inflation rate," said John Connolly, an analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc". While the US economy is troughing, others are peaking. Right now our fundamentals are excellent - perhaps the best that can be found in the world."

For others who look at the same picture from a less optimistic viewpoint, the prospect of a pickup in business conjures up memories of difficult. periods for investors in recent years.

Conceivably, they say, it could usher in a new bout of concerns before long about possible credit-tightening by the Federal Reserve, which has been waging a long-term campaign against inflation whenever the economy was strong enough to permit it.

"I expect to see more takers for the idea that the US economy is indeed growing — not growing rapidly enought to generate strong profits, but growing too rapidly to effect any improvement in inflation or interest rates," said Greg Smith at Prudential-

Bache Securities. "I suspect the triumph of this view will create another decline in the market, and may perhaps create a buying opportunity sometime in the second quarter. I anticipate a relatively dif-ficult period marked by a paucity of brave and exciting new ideas."

Undaunted by such warnings, buyers took stock prices to their highest levels since early January in the past week. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 22.97 to 2,683.33. on top of a 96.17-point gain the week

The New York Stock Exchange index of all listed common stocks rose 1.21 to 186.18; the Nasdaq composite index for the over-the-counter market gained 5.74 to 436.76, and the American Stock Exchange market value index was up 5.03 at 361.15.

Volume on the Big Board averaged 57.73 million shares a day, against 161.60 million in previous week. If corporate profits were the gauge rather than overall economic output.

"Most investors are resigned to weak earnings in the first half of 1990," observed Thomas Doerflinger at Pain ewebber Inc. "The next surprise is likely to be that earnings fail to improve much in the second half of 1990."

A primary reason for this, Doerflinger argues, is the recent rise of interes rates, which stands to act as a drag or growth and to increase companies interest costs at the expense of profits. "Of course," he adds, "rising US rates partly reflect higher rates over

Economy shows signs of renewed strength

US jobless rate holds steady

NEW YORK, March 10, (UPI): The US economy showed some signs of renewed strength this week with a rebound in the automotive industry largely contributing to the creation of 372,000 new jobs in February, the largest increase since June 1988.

The Labour Department reported Friday that the civilian jobless rate held steady at 5.3 per cent in February, for the minth consecutive month, with an estimated 90,000 back to their factories.

An industry survey conducted by integrated Automotive Resources Inc. projected that the total US car output would rise in the second quarter to 1.76 million units, up from the 1.48 million units estimated for the first quarter.

The projected output was, however, 9.4 per cent lower than year-ago levels, and mostly reflected the strength of non-US car manufac-

While the big three — General Motors Corp., Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. — were all projecting production cuts in the April-June quarter, most Asian companies man-ufacturing cars in the United States were planning on stepping up production by an average 18.6 per cent to 345,185 cars. The much stronger-than-expected

February job report pushed the stock market down Friday. Analysts said the unexpected rise in jobs would probably mean interest rates will stay where they are for some time, as the Federal Reserve will not feel the need to lower them to pump up the econny. The debate about the actual state of the US economny remained open as the Commerce Department repor-ted that factory orders plunged 5.4 per cent in January, the biggest decline since a 7 per cent dive in December 1974. Some analysts said the figures indicated that a recent downturn in the economy has bottomed out, but the usually bullish US Chamber of Commerce warned, "things are getting worse quickly."

January's $13.1 billion drop in factory orders to $227.7 billion followed a revised 0.4 per cent increase in December to $240.7 billion. US consumers were delivered a mixed bag of good and bad news. The US Postal Service's board of governors said it approved a postal rate increase that would raise the

No sign of an immediate resolution to the Greyhound strike prompted federal regulators to invite union leaders to Washington in hopes of a possible settlement. The strike began March 2 when many of Greyhound's 9,000 union employees walked off the job after intense talks with the company failed to yield a new threeyear contract.

On the corporate front, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. reported Wednesday that US commercial banks posted disappointing fourth-quarter earnings of $2.7 billion, their fourth lowest performance since 1983.

Real estate portfolios were weak and bankers had to increase prov-isions to cover domestic credit losses, the FDIC said.

But there were some good news for a number of US retailers who reported healthy sales gains for February. mainly on the strength of spring apparel that captivated shoppers during an unseasonably warm

The best showings were posted by speciality retailers including the Limited Inc. and the Gap Inc.

Troubles were far from over for the parent of two US retailing units, Federated Department Stores Inc. and Allied Stores Corp., which are under bankruptcy protection. Toronto-based Campeau Corp. said Thursday it was in default on $705 million in loans after failing to reach a deal to defer more than $5 million in interest payments to two major lenders, Olympia and York Developments Ltd. and the Edward J. Debartolo Corp.

Eastern Airlines, another company operating under bankruptcy protection, Tuesday asked a court judge to evaluate past transactions between the carrier and its parent. Texas Air Corp.

Overseas investments in Turkey up

ANKARA, March 10, (Reuter): Foreigners invested $708 million in Turkey in 1989, up 57 per cent from 1988's $406 million, the State Planning Organisation

"We will exceed $1 billion in actual foreign investment inflows this year," SPO foreign investment director Ibrahim Cakir predicted to Reuters. In the early 1980s investment ran at a steady $100-200 million a year. The figures represent direct foreign investments in new projects and expansions. More than half went into manufacturing, most of the rest to tourism, trade and banking.

Cakir said the investment figure did not include foreign purchases on Istanbul's Stock Exchange, which he estimated at around $100 million.

At the end of 1989, Cakir said. 1,404 foreign firms were operating in Turkey compared with only 91 in 1979, before liberalisation policies transformed many sectors of the economy.

British firms led the way in 1989 with an 15.7 per cent share in the total actual foreign investments, followed by Switzerland's 11.5 per cent, West Germany's 8.6 per cent and US's 6.4 per cent.

Dutch travel industry delegation

IN the period from March 9-12. 1990, a delegation of eleven representatives of the Dutch tourist industry is to participate in a sales mission which has been organised by the Netherlands Board of Tourism (NBT), in close co-operation with KLM Royal Dutch Airlines.

The party is to be led by Rob Al the NBT's Middle East director. Al regards the sales mission's zest as being living proof of the value the Dutch tourist industry attaches to the Middle East approximately 42,000 tourists per annum come from this market. Al believes that a number of highlights are in store for 1990: This year there is plenty of interest in tourism, as it has been declared European year of Tourism.' There are activities in abundance.

The Netherlands has added high-point of 1990 being the commemorative year of the artist Vincent van Gogh (1853-1890). The fact that Van Gogh died a hundred years ago is commemorated by means of exhibitions in Amsterdam and the Kroller Muller Museum." During the round trip through the Middle East the Dutch delegation will be stopping over in Dubai (March 9-11), Abu Dhabi (March 11-13), Kuwait (March 13-15), Riyadh (March 15-18) and Jeddah (March 18-20). By means of workshops, s ales calls and more information meetings, the Dutch representatives wish to strengthen their ties with their connections in the Middle East and make new con-

UPI newspictures out of business.
The British-based news agency, in response, called UPI's claims a "conspiracy theory." Any US expansion plans by Reuters were permitted under the contract and were based on a belief UPI probably would go out of business. Reuters said in documents filed in US district court in Manhattan.

Reuters, claiming a deterioration in the volume and quality of UPI's newspictures, announced Feb 16 it was terminating the 5-Reuters' photos from abroad and Reuters' UPI domestic news photos.

year-old contract through which UPI clients in the United States receive clients outside the United States receive

Reuters then filed suit seeking to recover

what it claimed was the additional cost of supplementing UPI's domestic photo service. UPI, in a counterclaim to the Reuters suit, is seeking an injunction to prevent Reuters from breaching the 10year exchange agreement that went into effect in January 1985.

US district judge Peter Leisure issued an order Feb 27 temporarily restraining Reuters from stopping the flow of news photos to UPI clients as it did for four hours and five minutes Feb 16. A hearing was scheduled for Monday. In court documents filed Tuesday to support its request for a preliminary injunction, UPI said internal Reuters memos it obtained show Reuters violated the cooperative agreement "by stealing UPI's staff and subscribers and denigrating uPI's newspicture service" in an effort to take over UPI's domestic market.

"It is evident that virtually from the creation of the UPI-Reuters partnership, Reuters began to contemplate causing and exploiting - rather than responding to -the "demise" of the UPI service." UPI

The Washington-based news agency said, "these internal memoranda disclose Reuters' naked bad faith.

Reuters, in court papers filed Friday opposing UPI's request for an injunction. said UPI distorted the meaning of its internal memos. The British news agency said it had developed contingency plans for operating in the United States and cited a memo by a Reuters executive saying, 'in our view, UPI's demise is almost certain."

"Reuters was planning for the day that UPI might suddenly stop feeding Reuters US pictures, not as part of a strategy to put UPI out of business," Reuters said. "Reuters never had a plan of any sort to drive UPI out of business," the Reuters

"UPI simply cannot run away from the fact that its well-documented financial troubles caused it to drastically curtail its picture operations and to function with far fewer competent photographers and adequately equipped picture bureaus," Reuters said.

"It strains credulity to believe that 300-400 subscribers dropped UPI's picture service because of the increasing quality of that service," Reuters said.

UPI said Reuters' claims about the United States market." "Reuters' executives concocted an elaborate "cover" for their invasion of the United States market - if questioned by UPI, they would simply complain, as they do in this court, that their expansion of business in the United States is the unforescreen for Reuter's efforts to invade the tunate but necessary consequence of UPI's shortfalls and inadequacies." UPI said. UPI cited a February 1989 internal memo by Reuters president Andre Villen-euve that said Reuters would try to main-tain its relationship with UPI and that "we will seek to explain our expansion in US pictures by saying that it has been neces-sary to make up for deficiencies in UPI's coverage." UPI contended Reuters' strategy to expand into the US market went well beyond a contingency plan. Reuters was developing its own electronic photo ter-minal called RNPT, which it planned to offer on a free trial basis to UPI subscribers, UPI said.

KPBC, KRP and Trico triumph

Overland brush aside Kay

OVERLAND Transport Com-pany, KRP, KPBC and Trico International scored contrasting victories as the Kuwait Pinoy Basketball League (KPBL) games continued at the Kheifan High School Gym on Friday.
Overland Transport Co. vs.

Kay & Associates

Overland Transport Co. registered their first win with a 86-69 decision over an undermanned Kay & Associates 5. Kay & Associates who had only 7 players found, it tough all the way as "Billy Ray" Navarro (Overland's, main man) went unopposed. He finished with 26 game-high points and was ably supported by Martinez 15, Pineda 13, Ramalla 8, Birosalan and Villa 6 apiece. Kay & Associates playing minus team captain Alex Morales, Jojo Medrano. Teddy Lonoza and Albert Orozco was paced by Joselito "Atoy" Kai 21, Velayo "The Durable" had 14, Alvendia 13, Evangelists 12 and Marin 8, points. The Mabuhay Best Player of the Game award was given for the second time around to Mr. "Billy Ray" — "Hulk Hogan" Navarro for successfully leading his team to their 17 points win over Kay & Associates.

KRP vs. Nissan Al Babtain Regency KRP-Kuwait Palace found out that Nissan Al Babtain was a hard nut to crack as they escaped with a hairline victory 85-84 over the latter.

Dr Dauday Tago, minister counsellor/consul general, and Bert Martin, labour attache, of the Philippine Embassy watch the KPBL games.

Half-time score stood at 44-44 as Nissan's combination of Abajero. De Los Reyes, Aquino, Detera and Espinosa matched the heroics of KRP's speedy Bolito & Osorio. The second half was no different than the first 20 minutes of the ballgame. It was close all throughout with neither team taking a clear advantage over the other. With less than 3 minutes left in regulation time Nissan took the driver's seat 79-78 but this was short-lived as Speedy Bolito rose to the occasion and scored 3 consecutive baskets and a charity point to outsteady the Nissan 5. With the score at 85-81 and time down to 38 seconds, Nissan's Espinosa converted on a 3 point attempt to bring the game to a cardiac finish. In the ensuing play Andal, KRP's Richard Serrano, Navarro, Bolito and Reyes receive their MVP awards.

Gomez was fouled & the KRP 5 made the mistake of taking the one on one free throw instead of waving the situation. Andal missed his first try and Nissan was able to recover the ball. KRP was lucky enough to win the ballgame as time expired with Nissan unable to make a clear attempt at their basket. Speedy Bolito led his team 26 followed by Matudio and Nardo 12 each, Osorio 11, Reodique 10, Sone 5 and Jumadiao 4. Nissan was paced by Abajero 26, Detera and Espinosa 14 a piece and De Log Reves 10 points. Speedy Bolito was named the Mabuhay Best score was 100-90. In their 4th win in as many outings KPBC played listlessly against an undermanned opponent. The game was characterised by errors, as both teams displayed an array of fancy dribbling, blind passes and trick shots to the dismay of the basketball fans. When the final horn sounded, KPBC shot 100 and KDD managed to reach 90.

Top scorers for the winners vere Serrano "The Foreigner" 24, De La Cruz 23, Arganoza 14, the Macho Man from Adan-Castro 13, The Carnation Baby-Domingo 10 and The Alaska Baby-Lito Manuel 8. KDD was led by Gutierrez 26, Linganay 20, Pizarro 18 and Ramirez 14.

The Mabuhay Best Player of the Game was awarded for the 2nd time around to the Foreigner "Len Serrano" for his steady shooting all throughout the contest.

Trico International vs Al Ghanim Freight and Travel The last game of the day was the most crucial one as both teams are going all out for a win that could advance them to the Championship Round. Trico International out-duelled Al Ghanim 91-83 to keep their championship bid alive. Trico's combinaton of Reyes, Atienza, Menes, Calaycay and Babierra played well together against the Al Ghanim 5 of Velasco, Garcia, Dayao, Ragudon, & Galicia and led at half-time 47-40.

In the next 20 minutes of play, basketball fans were treated to some serious action, as both teams battled to secure that most desired win that could advance them to the next round. When the smoke settled down Trico was on top by 8 points (91-83) and they were led by Reyes 23, Atienza 20, Menez 18, Babierra 14, Calaycay 9 and Vargas 5 points respectively. Al Ghanim in its valiant losing effort was led by Garcia 21, Dayao 19, Velasco 17 and Dequilla 8 points.

The Mabuhay Best Player of the Game was awarded to Mat Reyes for his steady performance during the entire ballgame, top scoring with a game high of 23 points.

The "KPBL" winds up its Elimination Round schedules this coming Friday the March 16, 1990 with a series of very crucial matches that would determine who will join KPBC in The 4-team Single Round Robin Championship which starts on March 23, 1990. The schedules are as follows:

9:00 Al Ghanim vs. Nissan Al Babtain 10:30 EEI vs. Trico

12:00 KAI vs. KDD 1:30 KHC-Bayan vs Overland Transport Co. 3:00 EEI vs KRP 4:30 KDD vs Overland (if

Klimova, Ponomarenko win

HALIFAX, Canada, March 10, (UPI): Soviet Marina Klimova and Sergei Ponomarenko held on to win their second straight World Ice Dancing Championship last night, despite a heartrending, event-winning free dance finale by Canadian expatriots Isabelle and Paul Dichesnay of France Duchesnay of France.

Another Soviet team, 1989 silver medallists Maia Usova and Alexander Zhulin, settled for the bronze medal, and Americans Susan Wynne and Joseph Druar were fourth — up one from last tear.

Klimova and Ponomarenko took their gold medal on the basis of their first-place finishes in the compulsory dances and the original set pattern dances. They were scored second-best in the free dance with their lovely and technically difficult interpretation of music from "My Fair Lady', but the ranking from the programme was in some ways meaningless. They were simply the best of all the rest.

The sibling Duchesnays, who have bewildered judges and bent rules forcing a new, dramatic and interpretive style into the conservative sport during the past two years, were in a class by themselves. Some members of the audience burst into tears at the end of their programme, which portrayed the struggles of two oppressed South Americans for freedom. The standing ovation from the sold-out crowd at the Halifax Metro Centre lasted more than three minutes. The Duchesnays were scored sixth best when they introduced their wildly exotic junge dance at the 1988 Olympics and they moved up to take the bronze medal at the 1989 Paris worlds. But the judges could resist the new look no longer last night. Five of the nine gave the Duchesnays perfect 6.0 scores for artistic expression, and though their technical marks were somewhat lower, the dramatic couple took the firstplace ordinals for the event by a 5-4 vote.

Earlier Friday, a mental error by Jill Trenary in the short programme event made the female event a four-way battle rather than the expected duel between the Americans and defending titlist Midori Ito of Japan.
Trenary doubled out of a necessary triple jump and was scored fifth in the round. That finish, coupled with Ito's first place, put both Soviet Natalia Lebedeva and American Holly Cook in position to win the gold medal during the women's finals

Prosecutors to let off Strawberry LOS ANGELES, March 10,

(Reuter): New York Mets temperamental outfielder Darryl Strawberry will not have to face charges over an incident six weeks ago in which he threatened his wife with a gun, prosecutors said yesterday. City attorney James Hahn said charges would not be filed mainly because Strawberry was undergoing treatment for alco-holism, which he said was "at the root of the family's problems."

Strawberry, who has spent the last month in an alcohol rehabilitation clinic in Los Angeles, was arrested on January 26 at this home in the Los Angeles suburb of Encino after his wife called the police. Lisa Strawberry told police her husband had slapped her and she had retaliated by hitting him with an iron rod. He had then taken out a gun and threatened Although his wife showed no signs of injury Strawberry, who was jailed briefly before posting $12,000 bail, suffered bruises on his ribcage and wrist, police said. Lisa Strawberry later signed a statement saying she did want to press charges.

City prossecutors, who could have filed criminal charges, met the 27-year-old outfielder for an hour last week when he told them frankly about the incident and about his dependency on alco-hol. Hahn told a news briefing. "He has now completed the initial step of his recovery programme. Therefore we do not intend to file misdemeanour spousal battery charges", he

Under an agreement with prosecutors, Strawberry will submit written progress reports every two weeks for the next three months. He will continue to undergo alcohol counselling.

The Strawberrys' marriage has been stormy from the start. Shortly after their wedding on January 5, 1987, Lisa filed assault charges accusing Straw-berry of breaking her nose. She later filed for separation.

They were reconciled after a year, reuniting the baseball star with his two children, Darryl and

The answer's found here, in this little rhyme, Buster's tops for now, Ali's best for all time.

Berger fastest in opening US Grand Prix practice

PHOENIX. Ariz., March 10, (Reuter): Austrian Gerhard Berger marked his first competitive appearance in a McLaren yesterday by surviving a fierce late challenge from team-mate Ayrton Senna to claim provisional pole position for tomorrow's US Grand Prix motor race.

Berger, overhauling the excellent times set earlier by Italian Pierluigi Martini in a Minardi, clocked a best time of one minute and 28.664 seconds on the demanding Phoenix street

His time was nearly 1.5 seconds inside Senna's pole time for the track last June.

Senna, who appeared to force Berger off the circuit and into a run-off area in the closing minutes, finished fifth-quickest at the end of a crash-marred session behind three Pirelli-clad runners sandwiched between the two McLarens, each running on Goodyear tyres.

Martini, fellow-Italian Andrea de Cesaris in a Dallara and Frenchman Jean Alesi in a Tyrrell were second, third and fourth-quickest after a day dominated by the interruptions caused by spins and crashes.

County supervisors are scheduled to vote Monday night on whether to approve Oakland's 5602-million offer to lure the NFL team back from Los Angeles. The Raiders left after the 1981 season in a dispute over tradium.

There is growing concern among local officials and citizens that residents might end up footing the bill for extra stadium renovation costs or subsidies if the Raiders attendance isn't high enough. A majority of supervisors are reported to be leaning in favour of the offer, but there is no clear consersus on the nine-member council.

Whether or not the deal wills approval, the Raiders likely will remain in Los Angeles for at least one more season while the Oakland Col-iseum is renovated and lunury boxes are added to meet Davis' demands.

Hopes fade for Lewis-Johnson showdown this year

RALEIGH, N.C. March 10. (Reuter): Time is running out for a 100 metres showdown this year between world record holder and Olympic champion Carl Lewis and disgraced Canadian sprinter Ben Johnson, Lewis business manager said yesterday.

If it's going to come, it's got to come in the next three weeks so we can begin drug testing and other things," Joe Douglas told Reuters by telephone from his office in Santa Monica, California.

Douglas said the Lewis camp had received what he termed "responsible offers" of more than $1 million for each runner from Spanish promoters in Seville and Barcelona and that he had also talked to hotels in the Las Vegas area.

But he stressed that no negotiations could take place until Canadian officials made a decision on the status of Johnson, who was disqualified for using steroids after winning the 100 metres gold medal at the 1988 Seoul

A Canadian judicial inquiry into the use of drugs in sport is expected to issue a report within the next month that may include recommendations on Johnson's reinstatement.

The Canadian government has banned the Jamaican-born Johnson for life, but the decision is expected to be reviewed after the report is issued. The International Amateur Athletic Federation barred him for two years after the Olympics. Lewis, who was runnerup at the Olympics, inherited the gold medai and later became world record holder

by default when the IAAF stripped

Johnson of his 1987 mark.

Douglas said Johnson's represen-tatives had told him they could not discuss a race until the Canadian ban was resolved. He said promoters in Barcelona and Seville had indicated they would be willing to offer the athletes more than $1 million each to compete in a .

100 metres race, which would include several other sprinters.

"If we can raise the money, and that is a big if, I think the race will come about," Douglas said.

But so far he had not received offers of a firm financial package or a site that were totally acceptable, he said.

Ballesteros shrugs off illness to shoot 65

PALMA, Majorca, March 10. (Renter): Sevvy Ballesteros shrugged off illness to shoot a seven-under-par 65 and trail halfway pacemaker Magnus Persson by one shot in the Balearic Open at Son Vida yesterday.

Persson, who is seeking his first European victory, also had a 65 for a 36-hole aggregate of 130. Ballesteros, who is taking antibiotics to combat flu and spent 20 hours in bed at his hotel before his second round, would have tied for the lead but for three-putting the short 16th. Fellow Spaniard Juan Ouiros shot 64 for third place on 132 and Australian Rodger Davis was also round in a best of the day 64 to tie Swede Jesper Parnevik (68) for fourth place on 134.

Ballesteros, who became Europe's first £2 million ($3.22 million) prize money winner simply by qualifying for the last two rounds, had eight birdies.

But after completing his round he said: "I've played with a high temperature and a fever and I don't know if I can finish the tournament.

"I'm making a great effort because it is Spain and my company's event but I am not feeling well at all."

In Las Vegas, Parti Rizzo birdied four of her last five holes vesterday to shoot a 66 yesterday and take the first-round lead inthe inaugurai $400,000 Desert Inn International women's golf iournament.

Rizzo's six-under-par round over the 6,285-yard Desert In course gave her a two-stroke lead over Danielle Ammaccapane, Kate Rogerson and Canadian Rookie Gail Anderson-Graham.

Rizzo made two birdies on the front side before getting really hot down the stretch with many birdie putts on the front side," said Rizzo. "I guess I made up for the missed putts on the back

And in Coral Spring second-year player Joel Edwards fired a three-under-par 69 yesterday to take the lead at the halfway point of the million-dollar PGA Classic golf tournament with a 36-hole total of four-

-under-par 140. Edwards, whose only top 10 finish in his brief career came earlier this year in Tucson, used a streak of five birdies in six holes to assume the lead in the chase for the top prize of $180,000. One shot back was first-round leader John Huston, who posted a 73 yesterday. Tom Watson, who fired a 69, JC Snead and Mark Brooks were another stroke behind at 142. Edwards, a 28-year-old Texan, was one-over 37 on his outward nine over the windy 7,037-yard Tournament Players Club at Eagle Trace, but sank short birdie putts at numbers 10 and II and added 20-footers at 12 and 14 before finishing his birdie barrage with a 15-footers at 12 and 14 before finishing his birdie barrage with a 15-footer at

Aussies outlast Kiwis New Zealand reach final

AUCKLAND, March (Reuter): Australia beat New Zealand with a superior run rate at Auckland's Eden Park today, in a rain-shortened last preliminary round match of a triangular one-day series with India.

Australia made 239 for six off 47 overs after being put in to bat. Rain interrupted both innings twice before finally bringing the game to a premature close with New Zealand 167 for two from 34.5 overs.

New Zealand will meet Australia in the series final in Auckland tomorrow, after achieving a better net run rate than India in the preliminary matches. New Zealand and India both finished with one win from four games, while Australia had four wins.

New Zealand's target had been adjusted to 204 off 40 overs after their innings was interrupted by rain with the score at 115 for one in the 25th over.

Martin Crowe, who combined with captain John Wright for a 99-run opening stand, retired hurt with a thigh muscle injury. He is in doubt for tomorrow's final.

Crowe made 51, while Wright was earlier bowled by off-spinner Peter Taylor for 48. Fast bowler Carl Rackemann removed Mark Greatbatch

Dumlao and Vendiola win easily

THE third round matches of the 7round Swiss system tournament, organised by the Filipino Chess Club in Kuwait "Filcheck", were held on Friday, at the new Kabayan Restaurant.

In Group A, favourite Niel Dumlao and little known Ingy Vendiola scored convincing victories over veteran Edwin Borigas and last year's active chess champion Nanding Policarpio respectively. They now lead the group with 3-straight wins and will be playing against each other on Friday. March 16.

The day also saw the other pre-tournament favourites going down in defeat. Thony Monreal was outwitted by Ali Mca-ayan in 52 moves of a Giucco Piano variation while Rading Moje Mostrales is back in form by defeating Sammy Aurellano in 27 moves of a Sicilian defence. Rolly Boado and Rey Mangornong broke into the scoring column with half points each. Arnel Matutino, slowly showing his true form, beat neat newcomer Rey Cortez in 38 moves of a king's Indian defence.

The longest game so far is the match between Danilo Calasin and Ver Farrales with the latter finally winning after 101 moves of an English defence.

In Group B, veteran Gil Opiana Jr registered his third straight win at the expense of newcomer Alex Espedilla to take solo lead in group B standing. The much-improved Stanley Sawit defeated Mauro Burlat in 71 moves of a queen's Indian to stay in contention with 2-1/2 points together with Dads Pates and Jun Alejandro who drew their games. Other third round winners are Diony Bartolome, Mel Espinosa, Ahmad Hussain, Robert Vargas, Bernard de los Reyes and Fred Marasigan. The champion and the three runners-up of both groups will each receive gifts from Adawliah Electronics, distributor of Kasparov Chess Computers and Seven-Up Bottling Company and a tro-phy donated by Trico (No-Kilo) International.

As per tournament rules, participants who have defaulted two consecutive matches are considered withdrawn from the rest of the games. Defaulting time is 30 minutes from official time schedule.

Capriati; to nee! Gildemeister

BOCA RATON, Florida, March 10, (Reuter): Jennifer Capriati, the supremely confident 13-year-old American, surprised even herself by beating Helena Sukova in straight sets yesterday to reach the semifinals of the $350,000 Florida women's tennis tournament.

Capriati, playing in her first professional tournament, blasted the fourth-seeded Sukova. who is ranked 10th in the world. 6-16-4.

"I'm very excited," Capriati said after the match, which was interrupted by rain for half an hour. "I didn't expect to get to the semis. I thought I'd just come in and play my best."

The victory moved Capriati into a semifinals match against Laura Gildemeister of Peru, who ousted fifth-seeded Czechoslovak Jana Novotna 3-6 6-3 6-3 at the Polo Club.

Top seed Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina eliminated South African Dinky van Rensburg 6-2 7-6 to advance to a semifinals match against third-seeded American Mary Joe Fernandez. who crushed Amanda Coetzer of South Africa 6-0 6-1.

The first point of the match set the stage for Capriati's fourth professional win without defeat. Without hesitation, she fired in an ace—a bad omen for Sukova. Capriati went head 5-0 before

Sukova came up with four aces of her own to win her first and only game of the set. That was probably my best match, especially the first set." Capriati said. "I just got more and more confident." With Capriati trailing 4-3 in the second set, a light rain suspended play. When the match resumed, Capriati snatched three straight games to complete her victory. "I just couldn't pick up the pressure on her after the rain delay," Sukova said.

After taking the first set. Novotna just could not keep up with Gildemeister, who dominated from the baseline and never let the Czechoslovak get into her usual serve-and-volley game.

"She was hitting winners no matter what the score was." said Novotna. "She wasn't missing any shots and that made it difficult for me to approach the

Becker, Edberg sail through

INDIAN WELLS, Calif., March 10, (Reuter): Boris Becker, the top seed in the million-dollar Champions Cup tennis tournament, exacted a measure of revenge yesterday when he defeated Jay Berger 6-1 6-2 to reach the semifinals. Berger, the eighth-seeded American, had inflicted a 6-1 6-1 defeat on Becker in this tournament a year ago. Becker returned the favour, and nearly by the identical score.

Second seed Stefan Edberg of Sweden also wasted little time in beating his unseeded countryman Jan Gunnarsson 6-26-1 in their quarter-final American Andre Agassi, seeded six, had a bit more trouble with 14th-seeded Spaniard Emilio Sanchez, winning One favourite fell as American Aaron Krickstein, the fourth seed, was upset 6-27-6 by compatriot Jim Courier, a player with an even more powerful fore-In today's semifinals, Becker was to play Agassi and Edberg was to meet Courier. Becker stormed to a 5-0 lead against Berger before the American won his only game of the opening set. In the second set, Becker's concentration wavered when he dropped his own serve to see his lead cut to

But after that, Becker shut the door and reached match point at 3-2 with an ace before claiming victory when Berger netted a return. "I knew I had to play a little bit better than I did before," Becker said. "I learned a lesson from last year and my preparation is now different." Becker said his preparation included "not playing 18 holes of golf the day before. That was too much. This year I made sure to come and play tennis." Krickstein found himself playing a mirror of his own game as he traded fierce forehands, but

Courier's shots were harder and more punishing and Krickstein had no answer. Krickstein had chances to take the second when he reached set point twice at 5-4. But Courier, ranked 22, saved both with forehands. Krickstein saved a match point at 5-6 with a forehand winner but collapsed under a barrage of Courier groundstrokes in the tiebreaker, losing it 7-2. Agassi cruised through the first set against Sanchez, but the Spaniard switched tactics in the second set and played a more aggressive net game and the players traded four service breaks to reach 6-6 and the tiebreaker. Agassi led all the way in the tiebreak, winning it 7-

3 when Sanchez lobbed deep off an Agassi smash. "I'm probably playing now as good as I've ever played," Agassi said.

Wang and Kim become triple South Korea, in the men's 1,000-metre short SAPPORO, Japan, March 10, (AP): Chinese speed skater Song Chen upset world sprint champion Bae Ki-Tae of South Korea in the men's 500-metre race while Japan's durable star, Seiko Hashimoto, won the women's 500 metres today in the Asian Winter Games.

China kept the lead in the gold medals race

by adding triumphs in three short track speeding skating races and the men's 20-kilometre After two days of competition, the Chinese had seven golds, to five for Japan and four for South Korea.

China's Wang Xinlan and South Korea's Kim Ki-Hoon both became triple gold medallists in short track speed skating, with two individual triumphs and one relay gold Japan swept all medals in the men's Giant

Slalom skiing and the men's 15-kilometre cross country race, and won the men's 5,000 metre speed skating today, in addition to Hashimoto's victory. Kim had a hand in both of today's golds for track race and the 5,000-metre relay. Meanwhile, ice hockey competition began today with Japan running up an 8-1 first period lead and beating South Korea 11-7. China needed two third-period goals to tie North Korea 6-6.

In standard speed skating, Song won the men's 500 metres in 38.14 seconds. Bae, who won the 1990 World Spring Championship on overall points without winning any single race, was second in 38.21, followed by Japan's Yasushi Kuroiwa and Yasunori Miyabe, tied Japanese coach Makoto Hirose, who returned from China in December after working for two months with Song in a sports exchange programme, said the Chinese skater has a best time of 38.02. Hashimoto, 25, second overall among the women in the 1990 World Speed Skating Championships, won her race today in 41.85, with teammate Kyoko Shimazaki, 18, the 1990 world junior champion at 500 metres, second in 42.08. South Korea's Yoo Soon-Hee was third in 42.22.

Japan's Kazuhiro Sato won the men's 5,000 etres in 7 minutes, 16.98 seconds, with China's Lu Shuhai well behind in 7:22.61 and South Korea's Oh Yong-Seok third in

On the short track, South Korea's Kim Ki-Hoon, who won the men's 1,500 metres yesterday, beat North Korea's Li Won Ho in the 1,000 metres today, 1 minute, 43.26 seconds to 1!43.50. South Korea's Kwon Young-Chul was third in 1:43.97.

Wang Xiulan, already the women's 500metre champion, won the women's 1,000 yesterday in 1:49.36, followed by two South Koreans - Lee Hyun-Jung in 1:49.42 and Chun Lee-Kyung in 1:49.55.

In the day's closest race, the men's 3,000, the top three finishers were within 0.03 seconds. Japan's Shuji Kawai won in 5:33.15, South Korea's Lee Joon-Ho was second in 5:33.17 and Japan's Jum Uematsu was third

ABU DHABI, March 10, (Reuter): The United Arab Èmirates soccer team, World Cup finalists who two weeks ago could do no wrong, can now do no right.

The United Arab Emirates press slammed the performance of their national team today after they collapsed in a 6-1 defeat against Kuwait yesterday and finished last in the Gulf Cup soccer tournament. "It was a black night. It has pushed the UAE team back 18 years," said the semi-official Al

Ittihad newspaper. "Who can believe it? Six shots in the goal of one of the 24 best teams in the world," it said. The UAE received a hero's welcome last year when they returned in triumph from Sin-

Zurbriggen triumphs

HEMSEDAL, Norway, March 10, (AP): Pirmin Zurbriggen wants to retire from ski racing at the peak and he did it today, wrapping up the World Cup Super G Championship by winning the event's see

The Swiss all-round star, who clinched a record-tying fourth overall title last weekend, had a narrow .05-second winning margin in his farewell Super G race. It was the eighth speciality title for the 27-year-old Zurbriggen, one of the few skiers to have won races in all four World Cup disciplines.

"This victory brings a lot of pride and joy for me, but it's hard to compare with the others." Zurbriggen said. "I'm happy with all my Zurbriggen flashed down the Bergaloypa track, shortened by 458 metres to 1.710 metres because of strong winds at the top of the course,
